Morrow To Be Honored At World Dairy Expo

MADISON, Wis. — David A. Morrow, D.V.M., Ph.D., State College, Pennsylvania, has been chosen as World Dairy Expo's 1997 Industry Person of the Year. Morrow's work as a veterinarian and professor has enhanced the welfare of the veterinary profession, the practice of bovine medicine and the dairy industry.

In 30 years of teaching, research and continuing education, Morrow has shared knowledge with countless students, dairy farmers and veterinarians. While on the faculty of Cornell and Michigan State Universities, he authored more than 200 professional and technical publications, and delivered 200 presentations at regional, national and international meetings. His research has been recognized for its outstanding contribution to the control of dairy cattle disease and livestock production and has been lauded for its practical approaches to dairy production. The American Veterinary Medical Association recognized these accomplishments by Dr. Morrow when he received the Borden Award for dairy cattle disease research in 1980 and the AFMA veterinary medical research award in 1982.

David A. Morrow

Dr. Morrow's efforts in helping the dairy industry evaluate cattle merit based on scientific functioning of the animal led to a change in how the whole dairy industry determines desirable bovine characteristics. His research provided the basis for the linear evaluation system now used by all bull studs and dairy breed associations.

Dr. Morrow received his B.S. from Penn State in 1956 and D.V.M. in 1960 from Cornell University. He also completed his Ph.D. at Cornell in 1967. He has since served as major professor for graduate students and taught courses in herd health, animal reproduction and comparative pathophysiology to veterinary students. He has developed and

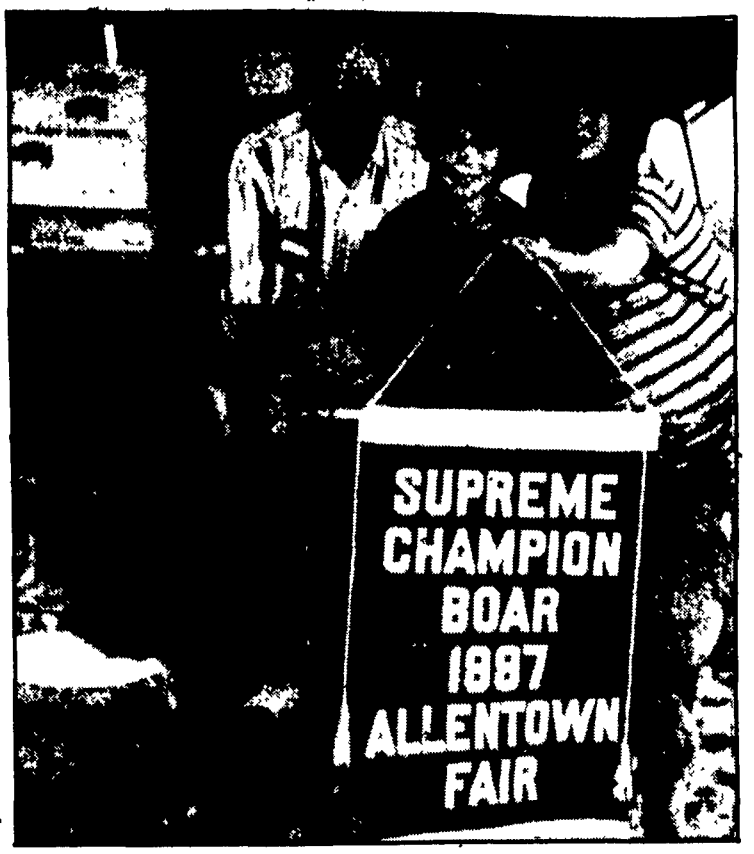
Regardless of what people call Linebacks, the ancient breed has found a secure spot in E. Barnard Baily's heart. Linebacks are sometimes referred to as blue cows or dalmations, because of their muffled black speckles that appear blue from a distance. The breed is identified by a white stripe that stretches from head to tail, raccoon eyes, black ears and a nose that appears as if it's been dipped into a bucket of black paint. To learn more about the Baily family, their 220-head herd, two centuries-old farms, and the Lenape Honoring Festival held annually on their land, turn to page B 2. Photo by Lou Ann Good.

From the left, dairy judge James Shaw of Mercersburg stands with Delaware Valley College student and dairy management intern Todd Webb who holds the halter of the supreme champion of the Greater Allentown Fair, while Berks County Dairy Princess Erica Davis presents the banner and is helped by Berks Alternate Dairy Princess Rebecca Ruppert. It is the third straight year that Delaware Valley College's 5-year-old Holstein has been named supreme champion at Allentown. The college also showed other champions. See story on page A40.



Cheryl Bennecoff, right, won supreme champion boar with this Duroc hog at Allentown on Wednesday. At left is Don Verhoff, judge and center is Todd Bennecoff Jr.

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — Forty-five years of breed and show experience can be prime ingredients in capping a swine breed show championship.

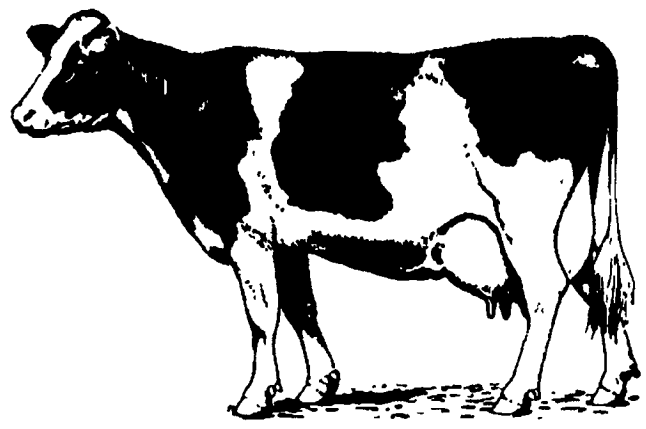
YOUR TOP COWS ARE PAYING YOUR BILLS



During these challenging times in the dairy business it's critical that you get the right feed to the right cows. Cutting back feed on all the cows may be cutting into the milk production on your top cows who are making your best profits.

Below are some typical income and feed costs on cows milking 40, 60, 80 and 100 lbs. of milk per day. As you can see, the 80 and 100 lbs. cows have a higher feed cost, eat more expensive feed, and yet these are the cows that will produce the most income over feed cost - and it's income that pays the bills.

40 lbs. of Milk Per Day

Areas To Increase Profitability

- Use 2 feed program for milk cows. Fresh cows must have a high energy, nutrient dense feed designed for peak performance, and lower producing cows are fed a least cost ration.
- Milk in the tank pays the bills - see your banker and buy some fresh cows to see you through the summer months.
- Cull the lower 10% of your herd and use the proceeds to buy fresh cows.
- The above examples are run on a "best cost program" designed to meet the nutrient needs of a 1350 body weight Holstein. Alfalfa hay at $180 ton was offered up to 15 lbs per day, however it is more cost effective to feed more Corn Silage and purchase protein from grain sources.
- Identify the "weak link" in your current milk production program. Take steps to correct it.

*Milk price is actual July 1997 Order #4 net received at farm after all deducts, includes quality premiums and MACMMA.
Pennfield Feed prices are for the week of August 25, 1997 and includes 8 ton volume discount and 2 1/2% cash discount.

Wheat bids were mixed, mostly higher, as some support was due to the slight improvement in export sales and some fund buying on the board. Corn and soybean bids turned moderately to sharply higher on heavy fund buying on the board and a pickup in export sales. Wheat mixed, mostly 6 to 14 cents higher. Corn 2 to 5 cents higher. Sorghum 8 to 10 cents higher. Soybeans 4 to 12 cents higher. U.S. Export Sales:

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

SEPTEMBER 1-7, 1997

LABOR DAY, SEPT. 1.

SEE NO EVIL

September 1 marks the occasion of a partial eclipse of the Sun, but like the total eclipse of the Moon later this month (Sept. 16), it will not be visible in the United States or Canada. In some cultures, eclipses of either the Sun or the Moon were believed to portend evil omens and considered unsuitable times for beginning new projects, sowing seeds, or making major decisions. Some people thought the Sun and Moon were at war with each other and that the obscured vision of either meant a battle was in progress. In China, a dragon was credited with devouring the heavenly body. Native Americans might shoot burning arrows at an eclipsed Sun, hoping to relight the flame.

It is not necessary to light a candle to the Sun.

– Chinese proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Tomatoes can be harvested, vine and all, and hung for ripening inside.

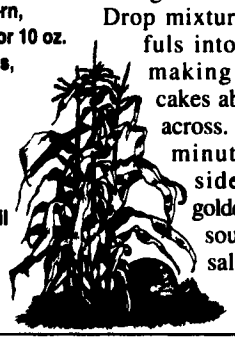
SUMMER CORN CAKES

2 eggs, beaten
1/4 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
pepper, to taste
2 cups uncooked corn, cut from the cob (or 10 oz. frozen corn kernels, thawed)
1/2 cup chopped scallions
1/3 cup diced red bell pepper
1 tablespoon corn oil
sour cream
salsa

In a large bowl, mix all ingredients except the last three. Heat a skillet and grease with the oil. Drop mixture by spoonfuls into the skillet, making individual cakes about 3 inches across. Cook 2 or 3 minutes on each side, just until golden. Serve with sour cream and salsa.



Makes about 15 corn cakes.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Northern lights are a sign of cold weather.

If night comes and goes, and no dew falls, look for rain soon.

If a cricket is chirping in the house, look for cold weather soon.

If the sky looks brassy in the west at sunset, look for high winds.

OPINION

Tasty Hamburgers

The meat industry has been hit with a great deal of publicity about tainted hamburger. But it is important to note that consumers should not worry as long as they take precautions to make sure any meat is well-cooked.

The U.S. Agriculture Department has recalled frozen beef patties from a Hudson Food plant in Nebraska because of concern that some of the meat may be contaminated by E. coli bacteria.

Common sense dictates that hamburgers, as well as any other type of meat, should be well-cooked. If it is cooked properly, you will have no problem. The necessary heat is 160 degrees internally according to food experts.

According to Janet Riley of the American Meat Institute, meat is sterile on the inside. When you grind it, you distribute bacteria from the outside. A rare steak is most likely ok, but a ground product like hamburger needs to be cooked thoroughly.

There is still a question as to where the contamination came from at Hudson, but officials do not believe it started at the plant but at one of the suppliers. But USDA found a problem with records for tracing the meat production so they needed to have a much larger recall of product than would have otherwise been necessary.

Millions of hamburgers are consumed each day by the world population as testimony to the wholesomeness of this favorite fast food. We believe the general public will continue to eat hamburgers that are well-cooked and nutritious. It's hard to find anything more tasty coming from an outdoor picnic grill.

To Adjust Silage Blower

A silage blower with one quarter inch too much paddle tip clearance suffers approximately 20 per cent loss in blowing power, according to Brian DeMaris, New Holland Service Engineer. Blower paddle clearance should be checked and possibly realigned every year. All you need is a few minutes, a nickel, a dime and two pennies.

The following tests are the same for the discharge blower on your forage harvester and the blower at the silo. Place a nickel and dime at the bottom of the blower case. Slowly by hand, rotate the paddles in a clockwise manner passing the two coins. When properly adjusted, the paddle should pass over the dime but push the nickel up the side of the case to about the 8 o'clock position before there is enough clearance to let it slip by the paddle. If the nickel drops before this, the clearance is unnecessarily wide. This cuts capacity and throwing distance.

If the nickel rides higher, the clearance is too tight which will cause the band to overheat and rob power.

Remember repeat the test for each paddle and make the necessary adjustments. Use the two pennies to adjust clearance. Lay the pennies in the bottom of the blower case about an inch from each edge. Loosen the paddle mounting bolts till the paddle touches the pennies. This assures the paddle is square with the band. Then re-tighten the mounting bolts with a torque wrench. Make sure each bolt is re-torque on every paddle. If the paddles are worn they should be replaced. Normal use causes paddles to wear beyond adjustment in 3 to 4 years.

To Look At Pregnancy Rates

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, states pregnancy success rates depends upon heat detection and conception rates. Based on Lancaster DHIA records in April representing over 700 herds, 44 per cent of cows in heat were detected and only 43 per cent conceived. This results in only a 19 per cent pregnancy rate (44 per cent times 43 per cent).

At 19 per cent pregnancy rate, it takes 5.3 heat periods to get cows settled. That is 111 days from the volunteer waiting period. For these herds this period was 59 days. This results in cows being open for 170 days (111 plus 59). Add the 280 days gestation period and you have a 450 day calving interval or about 15 months. To improve profits you may want to shorten the calving interval by improving pregnancy rates. To do this you will need to set heat detection and conception rate goals.

To Set Pregnancy Rate Goals

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, reports many dairy farmers need to improve their calving intervals. A 12.5 calving interval is 380 days. Subtract from that a gestation period of about 280 days and you have 100 days cows are open. If you shorten your volunteer open days to 45 then you have 55 days to get cows bred or 2.6 heat periods. To achieve this we need a pregnancy rate of 38 per cent. This may be attained by a number of combinations of heat detections and conception rates from 70:54 to 60:63. Goals you need to set include number volunteer open days, heat and conception rates. The shorter your calving interval, the higher profits you should attain.

NO LASTING CITY
August 31, 1997

Background Scripture:
Hebrews 13
Devotional Reading:
James 5:7-16

A little over a month ago I returned to preach at the church in Mohnton, Pennsylvania where I had served for 13 years before coming to Dallas, Texas 22 years ago. The invitation from the current pastor had been on my calendar for several months and I looked forward to it as a kind of homecoming.

Of course I realized that it would not be exactly the same church I had left in 1975. Some of my former parishioners had passed on, some moved away, and there were new people who had come since my departure. I knew also that the church building itself had undergone some extensive renovation. Yet, despite all of this preparatory thinking. I was not prepared to find that the appearance of the congregation was surprisingly different.

I really should not have been so surprised, for I know better — just as you do. Change is one of the facts of life with which a Christian must deal. Hebrews puts it metaphorically: "For here we have no lasting city, but we seek the city which is to come" (13:14). We all know that with the mind but we have a hard time accepting it in our hearts.

ACCEPTING CHANGE

I hope it isn't so for you, but I find that the older I get, the harder it is for me to accept the changing of things to which I have grown accustomed — institutions, practices, friends, relationships, associations. I must constantly struggle with myself to acknowledge and accept the changes that I cannot avoid. I know that "we seek the city that is to come," but I am often trying to cling to what Hebrews describes as "no lasting city."

The writer asks his readers to remember and consider the examples of the leaders who introduced them to and nurtured them in the way of Christ. One gets the impression that these leaders had died in the faith. Instead of bemoaning the fact that they were no longer with them, he tells them to concentrate on the examples these leaders had provided them and even to "imitate their faith" (13:7).

A few nights ago I awoke in the middle of the night and, for some reason, began to think about all the people who had been influential in the formation of my faith over these years. Many of them are no longer with us and I have lost track of others. I gave God profound thanks for what these people had meant for my own spiritual condition.

ONE FIXED POINT

Yet, although these Christian influences have come and gone in my life, I realize that the one reality that has never changed for me is Jesus Christ. My understanding has changed over the years — and probably will continue to change — and my way of responding to him has, too. But Christ himself is the one fixed point in the whole universe of my experience. He is the one immutable, unalterable, eternal reality in my existence. So, I can say with the writer of Hebrews: "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever" (13:8).

Some of those who read the Epistle to the Hebrews probably found it difficult to resist the temptations to fall back on rituals and practices upon which they had depended for many years. Hebrews is not saying that they must give up these practices, but that their dependence, their trust, their hope cannot be based upon altars, strange teachings, foods, buildings or sacrifices. These are all "earthen vessel," as Paul put it in II Corinthians 4:7, not the "treasure" of the gospel.

So, although the trappings of the gospel have changed and continue to change, the good news of Jesus Christ remains constant. We can remember and draw strength for "the good old days," but we cannot live in them. We "seek the city which is to come" as we "continually offer up a sacrifice of praise to God . . ." (13:13). No matter how much things have changed and continue to change, God still requires of us the same response now that he has always set before us: "Do not neglect to do good and to share what you have, for such sacrifices are pleasing to God" (13:16).

Ribbon Cutting At Hagerstown Purina Mill

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — A ribbon cutting ceremony was held here Friday evening to celebrate the opening of the new Purina mill. Dave Abbott, president and CEO of Purina Mills, Inc. flew in from St. Louis for the ceremony, and other company officials and a representative from the Maryland Department of Agriculture were on hand to officially cut the ribbon for the new totally automated bulk plant.

Abbott said it was easy to support the proposed mill when it was in the planning stages. "The board supported the Hagerstown mill because of the tremendous record of growth, achievement, and tremendous record of delivering the results that have been promised," by Purina's Eastern region. "We see tremendous opportunities in agriculture in the U.S., in the production of meat, milk, and eggs, as well as the companion animal aspect that is so popular in this area," Abbott said.

Kurt Loudenback, division sales manager for the Eastern division, cited the business community's accommodation as a main factor in electing to build the plant in Hagerstown. "They really rolled out the welcome mat," he said. The town is also a crossroads for major East, West, North, and South interstate and rail traffic, and offered strong customer demand and large numbers of commercial livestock, said Loudenback.

Robert Hopkins, manager of product registration for the Maryland Department of Agriculture, extended a warm welcome to Purina. "The Maryland slogan is 'Maryland With Pride,' and tonight Maryland is bursting with pride to welcome Purina to Hagerstown," said Hopkins.

With a total of 11 employees, the plant will be almost completely automated, from the receiving area set up to handle rail and truck unloading, to the load-out facility that can bulk load 75 dry tons per hour. A six-ton batch mixer, capable of mixing 12 to 15 batches per hour, and a fully automated pellet mill capable of pelleting 12 to 16 tons per hour highlight the inner workings of the plant. Production capacity is currently 5,000 tons per month, but space was left next to the pellet mill for another identical unit to be installed at some point in the future, said Larry Belluscio, division sales manager for the Eastern region.

Built by the T.E. Ibberson Co. from Hopkins, Minnesota, construction of the plant took approximately 18 months from the time ground was broken. The mill officially opened on June 1, and the first load of feed went out on the 6th.

The Hagerstown plant is strictly a bulk manufacturing facility, said Belluscio. The bag plant will still be in Camp Hill, Pennsylvania, and all support services including sales, order entry, and customer service.

York 4-H Holds Junior Livestock Show, Sale

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

BAIR (York Co.) — Thomasville 4-H'er Adam Sellers made a clean sweep of the top placings at the York County junior market livestock summer show and sale, exhibiting both the champion hog and lamb.

The annual summer roundup show was held at the 4-H Center on Aug. 9 and 11. Wrapping up the event was the sale of the judged animals, with the 78 hogs and 33 lambs generating a combined $27,917 for the 53 participating 4-H members.

Dual champion winner Sellers, 18, is a veteran livestock breeder and showman, winner of numerous awards over the past several years in both 4-H and open class competition. A June graduate of Spring Grove Area High School, he plans to begin studies in 1998 at an Illinois junior college where he can continue his interest in livestock judging. During the year interim, Sellers expects to continue his employment on an area farm and complete his final year in 1998 of 4-H eligibility.

Swine Sale

Mediumweight hogs proved especially popular in the swine show, with that weight division champion and reserve claiming the overall show titles in the final runoffs. Finishing behind Sellers' mediumweight and grand champion was Jessica Innerst, Red Lion, in the reserve spot.

Adam Sellers' 233-pound, purple-ribbon winner opened the swine sale which followed. It was purchased after a round of spirited bidding by Hatfield Packing Company, long-time area livestock youth supporters, for a $2.25 per pound price.

Second in the hog sale lineup was 9-year-old junior member Jessica Innerst, with her 231-pound homebred entry. The reserve winner brought the sale's top price, $3 per pound, and sold to Hake's Farm and Seed Service of Red Lion.

A pair of crossbred Duroc littermates got the judge's nod for the champion pair title, exhibited by Hanover 4-H'er Tammi Grubb. Under the sale gavel, the 266-pound and 258-pound pigs brought identical $1.30 per pound prices from winning bidder Delwood Kitchens, Inc.

Lane Innerst, Red Lion, exhibited the reserve champion pair, weighing in at a closely-matched 213 and 217 pounds. The 12-year-old's runner-up pair also commanded identical final bids, both selling to M.B. Graphics, Jason Martin, with a $1.75 per pound price.

Champion lightweight exhibitor was Bobbi Myers, Thomasville, whose 219-pound entry sold for $2.05 per pound to A.C. Service and Repair, Rick Roth. Champion light heavyweight title went to East Berlin 4-H'er Rick Jones, with Hatfield Packing the buyer at $1.50 per pound for the 237-pounder.

Allen Combower, New Freedom, picked up two division awards, exhibiting both the champion heavyweight and the reserve light heavyweight, Leidy's Inc. bid on Cornbower's 252-pound heavyweight, at $2.25 per pound. His 246-pound light heavyweight sold on a $1.65 per pound bid to Glen Rock State Bank.

A total of 78 head in the swine sale averaged $1.25 with the champion, and averaged only three cents less when the champion price was excluded.

Lamb Sale

Opening the lamb sale was Sellers' champion 128-pound purebred Suffolk, one of two he purchased for project use when the family oversold its spring crop of lambs. Buyer of the winning wether was 4-H Center caretaker John Kann, who made the final bid of $1.85 per pound.

Reserve champion market lamb was a homebred from the flock of Dover 4-H exhibitor Michael Burrell. The crossbred Suffolk, a 126-pounder, topped the sale at $3.50 per pound, selling to B and N Enterprises. B and N is the name coined by the 4-H youth's grandparents, who have supported his project's efforts in this manner for the second consecutive year.

Molly Ault, Hanover, exhibited the champion lightweight, an 84-pound lamb which sold to Texas Lunch for $1.20 per pound. Champion mediumweight went to Adam Sellers, with buyer Ray Kopp bidding last at $1.20 for the 108-pound entry.

Reserve lightweight was exhibited by Lindsay Jones, East Berlin. Lindsay's 82-pound lamb sold to Morrell Myers on a $2 per pound bid. Tabitha Ebersole was the reserve mediumweight exhibitor, with a 108-pound entry that sold to Stewart Ebersole on his $1.20 bid.

The sale of the 33 show lambs averaged $1.68 with the champion, and $1.66 without the champion.

DUNBAR (Fayette Co.) - The Southwestern Pennsylvania Holstein show continues to grow as dairy in the region strengthens, and producers see the value in competing in the show. The event at the county fairgrounds had 112 entries.

Strong entries in the junior section of the show insure that dairy in the region and at this exhibition has an attractive future. Ring announcer Oren Bender, Accident, MD, provided humorous comments that spiced up the well-organized exhibition. Rick Allen chaired the show committee.

Winners in this regional Holstein Association show accumulate points that can be used in competition for state-wide and national placings.

Judge Chris Hill, who is experienced both as a breeder and a national exhibitor, said he looks for animals within the breed character that show milkability--cows that look like they give a lot of milk. He added that a long neck and feet and legs that carry the body well are important winning characteristics.

Photos of the winners accompany this report.

100 Teachers Attend Ag In Classroom Workshop

STATE COLLEGE, (Centre Co.) — Nearly 100 teachers from across the state spent a week in late July on the Penn State University Main Campus attending the 1997 Agriculture in the Classroom workshop sponsored by the Agriculture Awareness Foundation of Pennsylvania.

The workshop was designed to teach teachers and therefore, educate America's youth, about agriculture.

Teachers from urban, suburban and rural settings came to the workshop to obtain hands-on experience, in an effort to learn more about the state's leading industry, agriculture.

The teachers had a full agenda with farm tours, classroom lessons, evening activities and time to meet new friends.

They went home with many ideas and materials to share with classroom students and colleagues.

Leigh Beamesderfer, forestry specialist and naturalist with the Lebanon County Conservation District, and Sally Mohny of Forge Road Elementary School in Palmyra, participated in the workshop. Beamesderfer was sponsored by the Lebanon Farm Bureau.

For those wishing more information about the workshop, and Ag -in the Classroom, contact Beamesderfer at (717) 272-3377; or Carol Ann Gregg at (412) 458-6108.

Two-Year-Old Holstein Tops Carroll Dairy Show

KAREN BUTTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Jeff Sutton showed his senior 2 year old Holstein WVA CA C Elegant to supreme champion at the dairy cattle show here at the ag center. The show was held in conjunction with centennial anniversary of the Carroll County 4-H/FFA Fair.

Judge Dennis Patrick of Howard County liked the Holstein's "outstanding udder, very youthful appearance, and nice set of feet and legs." She had tremendous size and was very well balanced, too, according to the judge who picked the Carnation Counselor — ET daughter out of the 132 entries in the show.

This was not the first time the big two year old has brought home top honors for Jeff; she was named supreme champion at the Richard Wills show this year, and earned 1st place in the 4-H at the 1997 Maryland Spring Show. He plans to show her next at the state fair in Timonium later this month.

"I purchased her as a senior calf and started showing her as a senior calf," said 17 year Jeff, who also happens to be president of the Maryland Junior Holstein Associaiton. A nine year member of the Carroll County dairy club and Union Bridge 4-H club, Jeff's main project has been showing dairy cattle. He is the son of Richard and Kathleen Sutton of New Windsor.

Taking reserve grand champion Holstein female and reserve senior champion Holstein cow honors was the second place senior 2 year old Locust Ayr Tyler Alice shown by Ryan Haines of Taneytown.

Kelly Myers of New Windsor had the best bred and owned cow of the Holstein show. She also took home the 3 year old Holstein production award for Windsor-Manor Light Kodak.

Amy Miller of Taneytown won the production award for 4 year old Holsteins with her bred and owned 4 year old Md Millstone Skybuck Baby.

Kristin Myers of New Windsor showed the total performance cow in the Holstein show.

Grand champion female and senior champion cow in the Brown Swiss show was awarded to the senior champion 2 year old Wind Mill Tradition Marmalade shown by Jarrod Burall of New Windsor.

Ross Bell of Hampstead showed the reserve grand champion female Brown Swiss, Dusty Rose Renatta, a senior 3 year old cow who was also named best bred and owned of the Brown Swiss show.

Wyatt Hall's senior 3 year old Guernsey, Nevera Billy Bisquit, was the grand champion female Guernsey and champion Guernsey cow. Wyatt is from Westminster.

Birth Of Cloned Calf Announced

DeFOREST, Wis. — ABS Global Inc. (ABS), a world provider of bovine reproductive services and technologies, recently introduced a healthy, 6-month-old bull calf named "Gene" produced from its proprietary cloning technology.

ABS also announced the formation of Infigen Inc., to commercialize applications of cloning technologies in the cattle breeding, pharmaceutical, nutraceutical and xenotransplantation fields.

Infigen's scientific breakthrough advances the prospects for commercializing cattle-cloning technologies. The technology provides an unlimited source of genetic material to cost-effectively produce large numbers of cloned cattle. Infigen believes its cloning process is significantly more efficient than other processes previously announced and that it has substantial commercial applications.

"We can make an unlimited number of cells, freeze them for any amount of time, then thaw them and make identical animals possessing a desired trait," explained Dr. Michael D. Bishop, vice president of research for Infigen. "Cells from cattle containing unique, favorable traits can be stored indefinitely, essentially preserving them for the future."

ABS has been developing its cattle cloning technology for more than 10 years and has an accomplished research group with expertise in cloning and related cellular science applications.

"The birth of 'Gene' and the creation of Infigen enables ABS to transform its considerable long-term research efforts into a commercial enterprise," said Marc van't Noordende, chief executive officer of ABS. "Cloning and the related technologies of Infigen offer tremendous promise for enhancing the quality, consistency and nutritional value of dairy and beef products, and have promising applications for the transgenic production of pharmaceutical, nutraceutical and xenotransplantation products."

Infigen will collaborate with ABS to enhance the profitability of dairy and beef producers by combining the advantages of cloning with existing services, such as artificial insemination, DNA Marker-Assisted-Selection and in vitro fertilization.

In the health and nutrition fields, Infigen intends to form relationships with other organizations to capitalize on the dairy cow's ability to produce milk protein in significantly larger volumes than smaller animals, such as sheep and goats.

In pharmaceutical applications, for example, recombinant proteins will be produced transgenically by inserting into the genetic material of an animal a foreign gene that directs the production of a desired protein in the milk of a lactating cow. With Infigen's proprietary technology, that transgenic animal will be cloned to produce herds of cows with the ability to produce large quantities of the transgenic product.

"Infigen's objective is to be the low-cost producer of valuable transgenic products by most efficiently cloning the most effective milk-producing animal — the cow," said Dale Schwartz, chief executive officer of Infigen. "We are actively seeking strategic partners to collaborate with to achieve our goals."

Marketing in more than 70 countries around the globe, ABS Global has been at the forefront of animal genetics and technology since its founding in 1941. ABS is the leading global source of bovine genetics and related animal care products.

Lancaster DHIA Achieves Record Turn-A-Round Time

JAY MYLIN
Manager

For the month of July, Lancaster DHIA had a 1.9 day turn-a-round time. Turn-a-round time for DRPC reports is calculated from the day the herd is tested until reports are mailed from DRPC to the dairyman. Most of our members receive their SCC and lab reports (which are mailed from our office) the next day after the samples are tested in the lab. Weekends and holidays will increase turn-a-round time. Turn-a-round time has been cut in half for our members due to picking samples up from our Technicians five days a week and having our own lab. We believe it is important to our members in making management decisions to have SCC and M.U.N. results back in their hands as soon as possible.

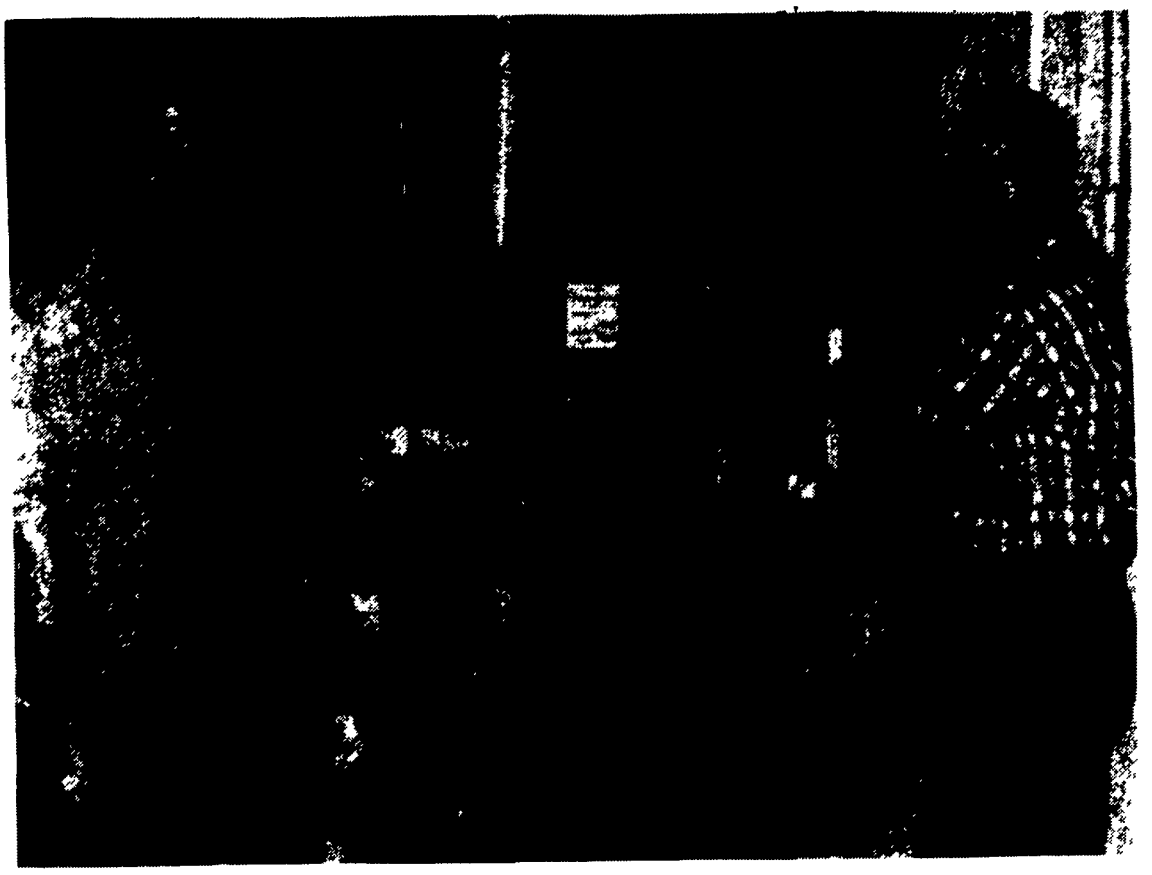
Lancaster DHIA serves Southeastern Pennsylvania. For information on our services call the office at (717) 665-5960.

DHIA Management Tips

Milk production in Lancaster DHIA was up 4.3 lbs. in July 1997 as compared to July 1996. The same amount of increase was also noted for June comparisons. Many factors may contribute to this increase; good management, cow mattresses, tunnel ventilation, feed and genetics all play a part. On the chart below, look at the comparisons.

- Milk price is $1.07 lower
- Days in milk is only 2 days higher
- Feed cost to feed a milking cow is $.14 per day lower
- Even with 4.3 lbs. milk more, income over feed cost is $.15 per day lower

Milking Cows	July 1996	July 1997
Milk	60.8	65.1
% Fat	3.6	3.4
Days in Milk	190	192
Standardized 150 day milk	67.9 lbs	71.8 lbs
Milk value per day	8.37	8.08
Feed cost	3.61	3.47
Income over feed cost	4.76	4.61
Feed cost per 100 lb. milk	5.95	5.42
Milk price	13.68	12.61



Barn Meeting Held

A new technology for vacuum pumps on milking machines was unveiled at a barn meeting at the John Landis farm, Landisville. The meeting was sponsored by Fisher & Thompson, Inc., Leola. Lee Southwick, director of marketing, said the new technology was developed at Cornell University and put on the market by Etron, Inc., Ithaca, N.Y. The principle is to slow the pump down and create only the vaccum needed to do the milking rather than use a release valve to relieve the excess pressure. The new technology cuts electricity costs for milking as much as 50 to 80 percent. In the photo are from left, Amos Fisher, owner, John Landis, farmer, and Lee Southwick, Etron, Inc.

Loan Forgiveness Applications Available

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Applications are now available for the Agriculture Education Loan Forgiveness Program, the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA) has announced.

The application deadline is Nov. 15.

The program was established in 1992 by the Pennsylvania General Assembly and is funded by a state appropriation. This year's appropriation was approximately $177,000.

The program will repay up to $2,000 per year of PHEAA-guaranteed student loans for each year the borrower is employed full-time in an agriculture-related field. Borrowers are limited to a lifetime maximum of $10,000.

"The increased cost of a higher education means that many of our students must rely on student loans to realize their higher education goals," PHEAA President and C.E.O. Michael H. Hershock said.

"This loan forgiveness program encourages students to pursue a higher education and remain in Pennsylvania, while contributing to the growth and professionalism of our largest industry, agriculture."

To be eligible for the program, a borrower must remain in Pennsylvania after graduation and be employed full time in the operation of a family farm, a family farm corporation or practice veterinary medicine.

Veterinarians must be certified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to sign health certificates required for the interstate commerce of agricultural animals and animal products. Veterinarians must also be able to certify regulatory testing.

Applicants must have a degree related to agriculture or veterinary medicine from a Pennsylvania school or college. Applicants must also be in their first year of full-time employemnt in the field on or after July 1, 1991. Only those loans guaranteed by PHEAA are eligible. Personal and commercial loans do not qualify.

Applications can be obtained from members of the Pennsylvania General Assembly or by calling PHEAA at (717) 720-3600. Additional information can also be obtained from PHEA-A's Internet Website at www.pheaa.org.

Milk Cooperative Returns 70% Dividends In Cash To Members

RESTON, Va. — Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc. will be distributing $4,530,077 to its members today, or 24 cents per hundredweight for milk shipped during 1996. This distrubtion represents both divisional earnings from internal operations and special allocations received from other cooperatives. Based on the cooperative's 1996 divisional earnings, Maryland and Virginia will return 70 percent of each members cooperative investment in cash. Special allocations are determined by the cooperative from which they are received. The total cash distribution is 15.6 cents per hundredweight, which includes both divisional earnings and special allocations.

Normally mailed on September 1, the dividend check will be mailed ten days early this year, on Friday, August 22, in an effort to ease the financial struggles of dairy farmers. The remaining 30 percent, or 8.5 cents per hundredweight in 1996, has been issued in certificates held in the cooperative's revolving fund.

Third Straight Year

Maryland and Virginia has distributed 70 percent of the patronage dividend in cash to members for three consecutive years, and averaged 56 percent over the last ten years.

According to President Jack Hardesty, a dairy farmer from Berryville, Virginia, "Because of the cooperative's excellent financial condition, the board of directors for Maryland and Virginia has been committed to returning as much cash as soon as possible to the cooperative members."

45.6 Cents/CWT Total

The 15.6 cent/cwt patronage dividends are in addition to 30 cents per hundredweight that producers received in a 13th check in February and last fall. Distributed to producers for the last 19 years, the 13th check normally is mailed in its entirety in February. However, approximately six cents per hundredweight were distributed monthly in the fall of 1996 to compensate for high feed prices dairy farmers were experiencing. In February, Maryland and Virginia producers received the additional 24 cents per hundredweight.

Only 20 Percent By Law

By law, cooperatives are required to return only 20 percent to its members. However, with this year's low milk prices and drought conditions, couple with Maryland and Virginia's strong financial position, the cooperative felt it was necessary to return as much cash as soon as possible to the cooperative members.

General Manager George Walgrove added, "We understand dairy farmers are struggling now with low milk prices and drought conditions, and hope that this patronage dividend check will help to ease the financial challenges of today's dairy industry."

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, headquartered in Reston, Va., is a milk marketing and processing cooperative which markets milk for 1150 dairy farmers throughout Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Delaware. The cooperative includes Marva Maid, a milk processing division in Newport News, Va.; a manufacturing division in Laurel, Md.; and an equipment division in Frederick, Md.

Ag Progress Days A Success

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The central theme for the recent Ag Progress Days held August 12-14 at Rocksprings was the fact that Pa. DHIA has an award-winning laboratory, having been rated 100 percent (Excellent) by Paul Sauve, National DHIA Quality Certification, while the field service department averages 14 years of service for 117 technicians along with maintaining the highest rate of usable records 83 percent for USDA genetic evaluations of any DHIA in the United States.

Dairymen receiving services from Pa. DHIA continue to enjoy the most accurate state of the art Milk Urea Nitrogen testing in the nation. Lab results can be sent electronically, fax, first or second class mail.

Technicians use on-farm computers to provide same-day test reports, which include persistency, quick overview, vet action lists, BST action, or customized reports to fill the customer's needs.

The Pa. DHIA processing department has also received an excellent quality certification rating. Dairy records can be accessed through the Internet. Thke herd data can also be easily obtained for records evaluations for nutritionists, veterinarians, finance officers, dairymen as well as other consultants. The processing center at Pa. DHIA also has the capability to interface with many herd management programs such as Dairyplan, Dairycomp 305, Cowsearch, Chektech, Delaval, Surge and Boumatic.

After summing everything up, Pa. DHIA enjoys the distinction of having a farmer owned and controlled cooperative that blends the laboratory, field services and processing departments all together to make for a winning combination.

Double-Crop Small Grains To Alleviate Feed Shortage

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Late August rains did not come in time to save drought-stricken corn crops in many parts of the Mid-Atlantic area. But they offer opportunity for beef producers and dairy farmers to reduce the likelihood of serious livestock feed shortages this fall and winter.

How? By sowing small grains now for late fall and early spring emergency grazing and for all or spring silage harvest.

That's the word from Lester Vough, forage crops specialist for the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service. Vough points out that winter small grains also serve as a cover crop to control soil erosion.

And new fencing technologies make it economically feasible for livestock producers to fence their fields for grazing, he notes — something that wasn't readily available during previous drought seasons like 1986 and earlier.

Vough recommends that spring oats be sown immediately (not later than Aug. 31), since it can be counted on to provide more grazing this fall than any other small grain. Oats also make a good fall silage crop. However, oats won't survive over winter as do wheat and rye.

For that reason, it's a good idea to sow a mixture of small grains (other than oats) around mid-October. This will extend the grazing season and make ensiling time less critical, since the various small grains have different maturity times.

Combinations of rye and triticale or rye-wheat-barley are good bets for spring silage harvest. Triticale also works well for hay when no-tilled into an existing alfalfa stand.

Hairy vetch and field peas sown with small grains make an excellent forage crop for use as silage next spring. But they will not withstand fall grazing, Vough cautioned, and they should be sown by Oct. 1.

He warns farmers to be careful about sowing small grains in fields that were planted to corn this sprig. Because of the drought, carryover of atrazine and other herbicides is greater than normal. This could cause adverse effects for small grain and forage seedings this fall.

Vough agrees that early fall seeding of small grains — particularly wheat — could result in damage by the Hessian fly, crown and root rot diseases and various mosaic viruses. But this concern is lessened by increasing the seeding rate 50 to 100 percent and remembering that the goal is to produce forage — not grain.

Also keep in mind that rye does not suffer damage from the Hessian fly. And grazing reduces the incidence of diseases and viruses that otherwise may occur with early seedings.

University Studies Ag Industry

BELAIR, Md. — The University of Maryland's Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics is conducting a study to identify and analyze several high value agriculture enterprises suitable for Harford County.

Scheduled for completion by June 30, 1998, the study is expected to yield comprehensive data for the Harford County Office of Economic Development (OED), the Harford County Cooperative Extension Service, and agricultural community members. These groups will use the data to compare the value, cost, and potential market for such businesses in Harford County.

Funding for the study is coming from OED ($25,000) and the university (a $27,250 in-kind services contribution). The study, identified as the highest priority in the newly released 1997 Agricultural Economic Development Initiative, falls into the category of research, data collection, and analysis. Other sections of the initiative are regulation and legislation, marketing and education. The initiative has been developed over the past two years to enhance the economic viability of the ag industry in Harford County.

OED, along with the Harford County Agricultural Task Force, will be the primary advisers to the study team. The task force is composed of representatives from several different agricultural-related government and industry groups.

For more information about the study, contact Harford County Agricultural Coordinator C. John Sullivan, III at (410) 638-3059.

National Plowing Match At FSR

LONDON, Ohio — Ready, set, plow!

It will be "plows away" at the Farm Science Review this year, home to the 1997 national and state plowing contests.

"I like to think of the plowing match as the agricultural Olympics," said William A. Goettemoeller, secretary of the USA Plowing Organization. "We really don't have anything competitive in agriculture other than the plowing contest. We don't get out on farms and plow as particular as in the contest, but we sure learn a lot to take back to the farm."

The National Plowing Match will be Sept. 17 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Molly Caren Agricultural Center near London, Ohio.

State delegates will compete in small, large, antique and open class plow divisions. They are judged on straightness, evenness of furrows, size of particles and other criteria. The winners of the large and small plow contests will represent the United States in the World Plowing Match to be held in Germany in 1998.

"The small plow contest is usually the most competitive," said Goettemoeller, a two-time national champion. "There are some real professionals that compete."

Winners from each county contest will compete for the state championship during the Ohio plowing contest in the same location on Sept. 16 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Direct entries for the state contest will be accepted if there is no plowing contest in the entrant's county. The winner of the state contest will advance to the National Plowing Match. Awards wil be presented both days at 4 p.m.

The last time the contest was held in London was during the 1987 Farm Science Review. The Farm Science Review is sponsored by Ohio State's College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences and takes place Sept. 16-18 at the Molly Caren Agricultural Center near London, Ohio. Tickets are $4 in advance and $6 at the gate and can be purchased from agribusinesses and county offices of OSU Extension. Children 12 and younger get free admission. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sept. 16-17 and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sept. 18.

The plowing match is sponsored by the U.S.A. Plowing Organization. For more information, contact William Goettemoeller at (937) 526-3525.

Youth Exhibit More Than 200 At S.C. District Show II

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — More than 200 animals were exhibited at the 30th annual South Central District Youth Dairy Show, August 23 at the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

A surge of late addition of exhibitors somewhat surprised show organizers who had anticipated about half the number of entries.

In fact, because they were anticipating much less participation in the show, they had changed the format of the show, and used only one type judge instead of the normal two (normally there is one judge for colored breeds, one for Holsteins.)

Terry Shawn of Charlestown, West Virginia, was type judge, while David Smith of Palmyra was showmanship judge.

Instead of having two show rings operating at once in order to have the Holstein breed judged separately from the five colored dairy breeds (Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Jersey, and Milking Shorthorn) all breeds were shown in alphabetical, consecutive order for each of the different age classes.

For example, all Ayrshire spring calves were shown, followed by all spring calves of Brown Swiss, then Guernsey, etc., so that the judge got to judge all six breeds for each age class.

Some of the age classes were large, especially in the Holstein breed, with the judge selecting a high of 11 blue ribbons in the Holstein spring calf class, out of 20 exhibited. A blue ribbon selection by the judge means the animal is good enough to stand competition at the state show.

As a reminder, each district youth show serves as a qualifying show for eligibility to the state show.

The state youth dairy show is set for Sept. 23 at the Farm Show Complex, in conjunction with the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show.

Last year, for the first time, eligibility to the district shows were liberalized to eliminate any distinction between 4-H membership and FFA membership, as had been the practice. (It was done that way because at one time it didn't seem fair to have younger 4-H youth compete against generally older FFA members who may have had an advantage in time and money devoted toward their project animals. That doesn't hold as an axiom any more.)

As well, restrictions on where to show were removed so that an exhibitor could show an animal at any of the state's district shows, each of which has its own committee that sets the show's fee rate and rules.

Last year there were some surprise heavy attendances at some district shows, as well.

The South Central District Show was managed by Lancaster County. Exhibitors represented a number of counties in the south central region and surrounding area.

Keeping Up With Environmental Laws Critical To Ag Producers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Most agricultural producers have a general understanding of state and national environmental laws and how they affect their individual operations, but now more than ever, producers need to know the complete details of those regulations for their own protection according to presenters at the Resource Management Planning Conference.

John Copeland, director of the National Center for Agricultural Law and Research Information (NCALRI) at the University of Arkansas School of Law in Fayetteville, said there is no substitute for environmental compliance.

"There are more laws than ever that apply to agriculture," said Copeland. "Farmers have to be concerned because they can be targeted as a defendant — both civil and criminal. We not only see lawsuits being filed against farmers and ranchers by a third party claiming bodily injury and property damage, but ag producers also need to better understand how government environmental regulations might affect them. Our job is to try to keep farmers out of trouble so we try and educate them to avoid the sort of pitfalls that can cost them their livelihood."

Show Experience Factors Into Allentown Swine Championship

Allentown Fair. On Thursday afternoon, John also won supreme market hog at Allentown.

John, 13, White Hall, showed a February Hampshire gilt, homebred out of a Rodibaugh boar from Rensselaer, Ind., to supreme champion. John, in the 8th grade at White Hall Middle School, said it was his first supreme championship at the fair.

It was close competition in the supreme gilt championship drive. John's February Hampshire gilt won narrowly, in the judge's mind, over the Spotted swine champion shown by Leslie and Lazarus Brothers.

The judge, Don Verhoff, who breeds Landrace, Duroc, and Hampshire hogs in Ottawa, Ohio, said all the gilts had god underlines. But Verhoff enjoyed the supreme gilt's extra length, which it "handles very well." Verhoff said the February Hampshire gilt shows "femininity, length of body, and leanness. Length of body is very, very crucial."

According to John's mother, Donna, 45 years of breeding and showing history in her family went into the championship. "There's a lot of history," with her family showing swine, she noted. Breed experience and an exercise area, what she calls the "hog playpen," helped out — the hogs are allowed to exercise for about a half hour every day in a sacrifice lot.

At the market show on Thursday, John showed the supreme market hog, a 250-pound purebred Duroc from the heavyweight division.

John will be showing at the York Fair, the Keystone International Livestock Expo (KILE), and the state Farm Show.

Verhoff was pleased with what he saw out of the Duroc boar, a February boar shown by Cheryl Bennecoff. The boar looked "really young and fresh," he said. "It will leave you with fast growing, easy moving market hogs. It puts the best package together, in my mind."

Cheryl, who raises hogs on their Kutztown farm with husband Todd and their children, said the homebred hog used Power Play genetics from Howard Parrish, Edon, Ohio. Todd said this is the first time they won with a Duroc at Allentown, though they have picked up championship banners in the past.

The Bennecoffs will be showing at Sullivan County Fair, Bloomsburg Fair, York Fair, KILE, and the Farm Show.

In all, there were a total of 90 market hogs shown on Thursday. On Thursday, showmanship winners included Amy Wehr, supreme champion showman, senior division winner. Amy, 17, is the daughter of Delores and Elmer Wehr, Orefield. She's a senior at Parkland High School.

Intermediate showmanship champion was George Billig, 12, son of Tim and Teresa Billig, New Tripoli and a 6th grader at Northwestern High School. Junior winner was Jeremy Gonzalez, 10, son of Bonnie Gonzalez, Kutztown and a 5th grader at Northwestern. First-year winner was Becky Hottenstein, 8, daughter of Roy and Barbara Hottenstein, Kutztown. Becky is in the 3rd grade in the Kutztown School District. FFA champion was Jason Wagner, 19, son of Dianne and Perry Wagner, Spring City and a graduate of Owen J. Roberts High School.

There were a total of 350 hogs and 20 4-H'ers between the two shows. Following is a list of show placings.

Producers Learn Beef Quality Strategies At Workshop

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Mike Smith, representative of the National Cattleman's Beef Association (NCBA), recalled an experience that changed his thinking about beef quality education.

Not too long ago, Smith arrived at the Pittsburgh airport. With time on his hands and a hungry stomach, Smith stopped in a nearby deli and ordered a roast beef sandwich.

Smith watched as the person behind the counter prepared the treat. He looked at the beef she was placing on the bread — pausing to stop her after she began to apologize. The cut of beef was low quality. He could see injection site damage right in the meat, an area of fat with prominent scar tissue. She offered to throw it away; instead, Smith asked her for the beef and said he would "use it as an example" to show producers what beef quality evaluation was all about.

That experience hit home to about 120 producers and agri-industry representatives last week at the annual Cattle Evaluation Workshop, sponsored by Penn State at the New Holland Sales Stables.

Smith, who is used to giving presentations on beef quality on the farm, told those at the meeting they should change their thinking.

John McFadden, sales representative from Hoechst-Roussel Agri Vet, told producers, "cows are employees — give them an annual review." McFadden showed producers how to check for bovine ocular neoplasia (also called "cancer eye") to avoid condemnations.

"Instead of shoving (the meat) through the system, listen to consumers and see what they demand of us," he said.

For the past decade, NCBA has been conducting periodic beef quality audits with beef purchasers and consumers to determine the marketing direction that the local beef councils and other cooperating agencies should follow. The audit is a sort of "checkpoint" for producers, packagers, and retailers to guide them in marketing, producing, and purchasing decisions for the years ahead.

In 1991, it was determined, Smith said, to expand the beef quality audit effort to "get at the whole issue of TQM, or total quality management," he said. To improve the product, you have to have some way to measure it, Smith noted.

What the 1991 audit showed was that for every fed steer marketing, because of questionable beef quality evaluation, the industry was losing $279.82 on every steer marketed, simply because producers, processors, and retailers weren't doing things right.

In 1995, the audit was expanded to asking the various processors where the quality shortfalls were with producers. Included were face-to-face interviews with processors and those who sell the product to restaurants, purveyors, and retailers.

One retail audit was asked what their immediate concerns were — the number one shortfall was product consistency. The packer's number one concern was the lack of overall uniformity of product, followed by liver condemnation, hide damage, and bruises.

Trouble is, there's "more variety in the types of cattle we're feeding," even on the same feedlot, noted Smith. At the same time, those who further process and market the meat are demanding a more consistent, uniform product that has great "taste, tenderness, palatability, and flavor," said Smith.

What the 1995 found out was that, in 1974, 75 percent of the carcasses were graded prime and choice. That number slipped to 48 percent in the '90s. While in an "ideal world," Smith noted, would give a carcass that would have 7 percent prime meat, and no standards, producers must find a way to do "a better job of supplying upper quality" in the meat.

A big factor in creating more rejected meat at the processor and consumer level is the amount of bruising evident in some of the meat, horn damage, injection site damages, in addition to hide rejection because of insects.

Smith focused on injection site damage in the meat, which creates off-colored, usually white lesions and scarification in the meat. The damage is evident in the top butt, up on the hip — the wrong place to give cattle injections.

The correct place, it was demonstrated at the workshop, is in the forward shoulder region, up in the neck.

At the meeting, Dr. Jim Floyd, extension veterinarian from Auburn University, spoke about how to avoid injection site damage.

A beef quality broadsheet that was distributed at the meeting, "Would You Eat What You Produce?", provided guidelines, along with photos, of how to avoid injection site damage. The neck is the preferred site for intramuscular and subcutaneous injections. Subcutaneous is best way, as long as the label approves it.

The broadsheet, reviewed by Floyd, showed producers how to use proper management techniques to save money by improving animal health. They included proper dehorning, ways to prevent hide damage, and tips to avoid bruising.

Dr. Jim Floyd, extension veterinarian from Auburn University, spoke about how to avoid injection site damage.

Mike Smith, representative of the National Cattleman's Beef Association (NCBA), spoke to about 120 producers and agri-industry representatives last week at the annual Cattle Evaluation Workshop, sponsored by Penn State at the New Holland Sales Stables.

Also, John McFadden, sales representative from Hoechst-Roussel Agri Vet, told producers, "cows are employees — give them an annual review." McFadden showed producers how to check for bovine ocular neoplasia (also called "cancer eye") to avoid condemnations, and how to check for mouth, feet and leg, and udder problems. Also, producers should check overall body condition. If it scores 1 or 2, "get rid of it," McFadden said. Cattle disposition goes a way in marketing the beef, which is often the dark-cutter variety.

Pregnancy checks should be conducted regularly. Cull open and defective cows before they become a liability, according to the broadsheet.

Tammy Weaver of the Pennsylvania Beef Council noted that the topics presented at the workshop will be introduced to other livestock markets in the state and can be presented to them if they are interested. She can be reached in Harrisburg at (717) 939-7000.

Delaware Valley Holstein Wins Allentown Supreme

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — A 5-year-old Holstein owned by Delaware Valley College on Wednesday was named supreme champion of the dairy breeds at the Greater Allentown Fair, in Allentown.

Competing in the show's aged cow class, Peticote Leadman Doll-ET, bred by William Petit, was shown by dairy science college student and dairy herd management summer intern Todd Webb, who showed her to the victory last year also. It was the third year in a row that Doll was named supreme.

Delaware Valley showed three of the four champions of the Holstein breed show at Allentown, though it did not show any bulls. Last year it showed the supreme champion bull.

The supreme champion bull of the 1997 Fair was Lynnacres Luke Buddy, born Nov. 4, 1996, owned by Stacy Dietrich. She also showed the 4-H grand champion Holstein, Lynnacres Bell Beth, and aged cow second to the supreme champion in its age class.

Dietrich also was grand champion showman in that competition.

The Allentown Fair dairy show operates differently than most fair dairy shows. It does not have a show catalog for the audience to follow, nor does it provide information on the animals being exhibited. It has modernized this year and show entries, as relating to premium payouts, were computerized.

Delaware Valley's reserve grand champion of the Holstein show was DVC Astre Camella, a senior 2-year-old. It's junior champion was DVC Beauty's Barb, an intermediate yearling.

The reserve junior champion Holstein was a junior yearling shown by Lizzie Moser, who also showed all four of the Milking Shorthorn champions.

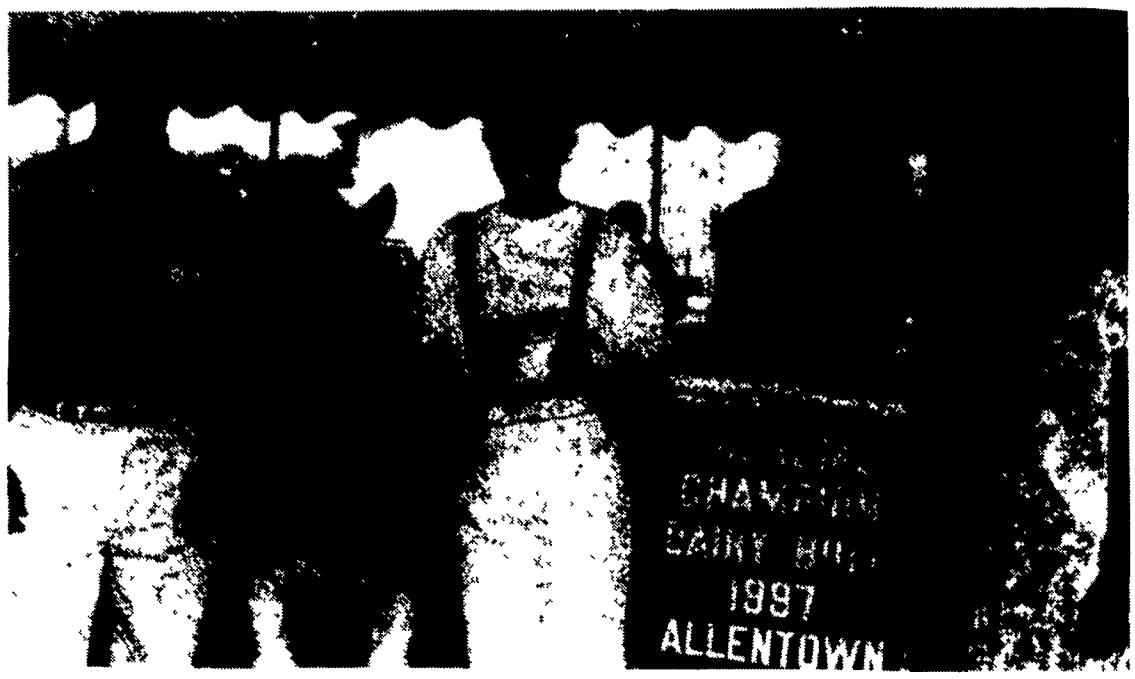
In the 4-H division Holstein show, Moser's animal was junior champion, while Stacey Dietrich showed the reserve junior champion.

While the grand champion 4-H Holstein was shown by Stacy Dietrich, the reserve grand champion was shown by Jennifer Rassler.

In the Jersey breed show, Mildred Seeds' 4-year-old, Top-O-Hill Juno Tonya, was the returning grand champion. Last year she was the judge's unofficial selection for runnerup supreme to the Delaware Valley Holstein.

Delaware Valley showed the reserve grand champion Jersey, Stoney Knob Carmel Brandy.

Seeds showed the junior champion also, while Meredith Bailey showed the reserve junior champion, a Top-O-Hill animal.



From the left, dairy show judge James Shaw, Mercersburg, stands with Stacey Dietrich who holds the halter of her supreme champion bull of the Greater Allentown Fair, while Berks County Dairy Princess Erica Davis and Alternate Princess Rebecca Ruppert present the banner.

In the 4-H division, Jennifer Neiman showed the grand and reserve grand champion Jerseys. Sister Jill Neiman showed the 4-H division reserve junior champion, while Meredith Bailey showed the junior champion.

In the Ayrshire breed, Karen Sterner showed the senior and grand champion, while Seth Wolfgang showed the reserve senior and reserve grand champion.

Wolfgang also showed the junior champion, while Chris McGinnis showed the reserve junior champion.

In the 4-H division, Sterner also captured the grand championship, while McGinnis showed the reserve grand champion. McGinnis showed the junior champion, also. There was no reserve junior champion in the 4-H division.

In the Brown Swiss show, Karen Sterner showed the open and 4-H division senior and grand champions, while Shannon Semmel showed the open division reserve senior and reserve grand champion.

In the 4-H division, the reserve grand champion was shown by Erica Lloyd.

Lloyd also showed the junior champion in both the open and 4-H divisions, a senior yearling; while Jonathan Sterner showed the reserve junior champion, a junior yearling. There were two junior animals in the show.

In the Guernsey show, Karen Sterner showed all the animals in

Schuylkill County Presents Conservation Awards

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN (Schuylkill Co.) — The Schuylkill County Conservation District presented is annual conservation awards recently during a ceremony that included recognition of the national Envirothon team, from Blue Mountain High School.

Each year the county district recognizes individuals, groups and area businesses who or that have contributed to the improvement of the environment. The awards were presented by Barron "Boots" Hetherington, district chairman.

The volunteer of the year was Barbara Leymeister-Jucker of Schuulkill Haven for her contributions to both the conservation district and Hawk Mountain Sanctuary environmental education programs.

In addition she organized a cleanup of the Landingville Marsh that involved the state Department of Environmental Protection and the public. Tons of trash were removed and access road gated to thwart future dumping.

Leymeister-Jucker assists Peggy Hentz of the Red Creek Wildlife Center with rehabilitating wildlife, as well as being involved in local watershed associations. She was most recently involved in the installation of an Osprey hacking tower at the Landingville Marsh.

The educator of the year was Ray Gaston of the Schuylkill Career and Technology Center, Mar Lin. Now retired, according to the conservation district, Ray has "... challenged students in his program, both youth and adult from throughout the county, with an extensive horticulture program. He has developed a program which focuses on everything from flower shop management to environmental water quality control for aquaculture."

The professional of the year was Steve Hower, formerly the wildlife conservation officer for the Pennsylvania Game Commission and now director of law enforcement for the PGC Southeast Regional Office. He was recognized for his efforts to both educate the public and enforce conservation laws.

The media conservation award was presented to WNEP Channel 16, for their Pa. Outdoor Life television show.

The forest stewardship award was presented to the Auburn Game and Fish Association for its efforts to improve the environment and environmental education.

According to the conservation district, "This group actively involves young people in conservation measurers that they pursue. This award is made in cooperation with the DCNR-Bureau of Forestry and is in keeping with conservation district goals of promoting wildlife habitat improvement."

The district's Cooperator of the Year award was presented to Alvin, Craig and Larry Wetzel and their families.

From the left, "Porcupine" Pat McKinney, conservation district director for Schuylkill County, congratulates representatives of the Auburn Game and Rish Association for winning the county forest stewardship award. Association representatives include, from the left, Gil Steffy, Lloyd Kerschner, and Kenneth Steffy.

The award is selected from among the 1,200 landowners in the county who are cooperators with the district.

The award is based on the landowner's innovative applications of several conservation practices that help conserve soil and improve water quality.

"The assistance provded to a farmer by the Schuylkill Conservation District and (the USDA) Natural Resources Conservation Service is incorporated into a farm conservation plan, which in the case of Wetzel's farms, serves as a model to other farmers that soil and water conservation practices are cost effective and can be incorporated into a successful farming operation," Hetherington said.

The Wetzels grow corn, soybeans, buckwheat, cabbage, sweet corn, and pumpkins on 400 acres. The home farm consists of 83 acres.

The Wetzels contract with Agri-Basics Soil Service of Shippensburg provides them with soil tests and management for insect disease and weed control, so as to only apply necessary fertilizers and pesticides.

The farm is located along Rt.125 in Valley View.

Livestock Sale Sept. 4

ERIE (Erie Co.) — Interested in filling your freezer with high quality beef, lamb, or pork? Then come on out to the annual 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale on Thursday, Sept. 4.

The sale will be held in conjunction with the Waterford Fair, and it will get under way promptly at 6 p.m. with the sale of the grand and reserve champion market lambs, followed by the sale of the balance of the market lambs.

The grand and reserve champion market hogs will be sold next, followed by the sale of the balance of the market hogs. The sale will close with the sale of the grand and reserve market steers, followed by the sale of the balance of the market steers.

According to John Rhea, 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale Committee chairman, all buyers at the sale will receive excellent quality meat and will be encouraging area youth in a worthwhile educational experience. The sale culminates the long project year for the approximately 65 4-H and FFA members who participate. Many of these young people selected their feeder calves nearly a year ago, and now these steers are ready for market, having been grain-fed throughout the past 10 months. Lambs and hogs were selected in the spring, and they've also been carefully raised for market over the past several months.

In all, approximately 30 steers, 20 market lambs, and 40 market hogs will be offered for sale on Sept. 4. All hogs offered for sale will be judged at the Waterford Fair on Monday afternoon, Sept. 1. Lambs will be judged on Tuesday evening, Sept. 2, and the steers will be judged on Wednesday evening, Sept. 3.

Auctioneers for the 1997 sale will include Raleigh Chesley, of Chesley Auctioneers, North East; Doug Chesley, of Chesley Auctioneering, North East; Sherm Allen of C. Sherman Allen, Auctioneer, and Associates, Conneaut Lake; Ronnie Reed of Norvel Reed and Sons, Sherman, N.Y.; Jeff Bennett of the Union City Livestock Auction, Union City; and Gary Shidemantle, of Gary's Sales Service, Edinboro. These auctioneers will sell all of the livestock to the highest bidder. In addition, one animal will be selected for sale by a celebrity auctioneer. Last year's celebrity auctioneers were instrumental in selling their animals above the average market price set at the Sale.

This year's auction will also feature the sale of a "charity" hog. This market hog was donated as a feeder pig to the 4-H progarm in the spring by 4-H volunteer leaders Marty and John Kosiorek. The proceeds from its sale will benefit the Second Harvest Food Bank in Erie. This hog is being raised by members of the True Grit 4-H Club. The charity hog will be sold at the end of the hog sale order, at approximately 8:30 p.m. on Sept. 4.

Field Day Held To Show New Technology

Dr. Mark Mattingly, Hoffman agronomist, explains BT technology to a group of farmers who visited the trade marked Maximizer Technology field day.

MT JOY (Lancaster Co.) - Under the trademark name of Maximizer Technology, Hoffman Seeds, Inc., held a field day Thursday to showcase all their latest technology that is offered to the industry.

Jeffery Cunningham, director of sales, said, "A lot of new technology is hitting agriculture right now, and we think it is important that people have the opportunity to view these things and become educated as to what they will do for them."

Cunningham listed BT technology for borer resistance in corn, round-up ready corn and beans, alfalfa leafhopper resistance, and high oil corn that is higher in energy and is a value added product.

Bob Rich, director of marketing, said their sales season is just beginning with wheat, and the outlook is for a good marketing season in corn and soybeans, as well as the supporting products. Hoffman has an advantage in that they research products in the Northeast and see how these products perform in their own back yard. After they make evaluations as to the feasability of a product, they also then look if it is profitable for the farmer.

The annual field day was held just east of town along the Mt. Joy/Manheim road. More than 300 farmers were expected at the event which was scheduled to last until 7 p.m.

Lineback Cattle, Lenapi Traditions Thrive In Centuries-Old Farm

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Some people call E. Barnard Baily's cattle Blue cows; his daughter nicknames them Dalmatians. Baily said of the ancient Lineback breed, "They just fit me. I like old things. I don't like to be like everyone else, and they are just different enough to suit me fine."

Lineback cattle are known to have existed during Biblical times. The breed, prevalent in Europe in the 1700s and 1800s, was brought to America by the English and Hollanders.

Baily purchased his first heifer calf Lineback 20 years ago.

"I was at the New Holland Sales Stable, and a friend told me I ought to buy it, so I did. When I brought him home in the truck, my dad asked, 'What kind of mongrel is that?'" Baily said with a hardy laugh at the memory.

"After she grew up, she milked just as good as the Holsteins," Bailey proudly reported of Grand Dam Flim Fancy that milked 20,000 pounds for several years in a row.

Baily's Linebacks look like they dipped their noses in a bucket of black paint. They have black ears, black around the eyes, a white stripe down the middle of their backs, and black speckles.

From a distance the muffled spots appear blue; hence the reason why some people call them blue cows.

Two types of Linebacks exist — Gloucester and Witrick. Baily has all Witricks, which are speckled. The Gloucester has a dark, solid-color body with a white stripe down the back and a white tail and belly.

The Baily's eldest daughter, Meredith, 14, shares her dad's enthusiasm for the breed.

"They are more docile and easier to handle," said Meredith, who also shows Jersey and Aryshire cattle.

Another daughter Becky, 10, also shows cattle, but she follows more in the footsteps of her mother Jane, who is from the Lenape Indian tribe. They are both experts at Lenapi beadwork and weavers.

Not all of the Baily's 220-head herd are Linebacks, about two-thirds are Holsteins. But Baily intends to continue increasing the Lineback percentage.

About eight years ago, Baily heard about the America Lineback cattle registry located in Shawano, Wis. Before then, Baily was using Holsteins for breeding because he

In addition to showing Linebacks, the Baily sisters show Aryshires, Freckles and Finale, which took first place at the Schuylkill County 4-H District Show. Notice the stone building in the background believed to be built in the 1600s.

In front of the farmhouse, which has been in the Baily family since the 1600s, are Jane and Barnard Baily with daughters Meredith, 14, and Becky, 10. Sitting behind Barnard is his mother Dorthea, herdsman John Stidhum is at right. With the family are three generations of Lineback cattle. The speckled breed have a white stripe across the back, solid color ears, eyes lined with black like a raccoon, and a nose that appears as if it were dipped in a bucket of black paint.

Barnard's mother Dorthea Baily, 83 years old, holds a copy of the picture that appears in the "History of Chester County," published in 1881. The drawing of the Baily farm appears almost identical to the farm today. A rail fence lines the quarter mile lane leading to the house and barns, which dates have not been determined.

Dorthea Baily lives in the farmhouse surrounded by family heirlooms passed down through the centuries. Her son, his wife, and children admire the quilt patches representing 50 states that she is completing.

didn't know what else to do. Since then, several Lineback bulls are available through DHIA. The registry is open through this year in order to establish the foundation animals in the states, then it will close in order to preserve the genetics of future breeds.

Baily reports that he has three generations of pure Linebacks that are registered.

He is grateful to Chester County extension agents for pushing for the breed to become recognizable and allowed to compete in fairs and other competitions. The Bailys show Linebacks at several fairs but district competition is as far as they can go at this point.

"Our goal is to go to (Pennsylvania) Farm Show," Baily said. He is working to have Farm Show officials offer competition in the Lineback breed.

Jane said of her husband's enthusiasm in helping his daughters compete in many shows, "He enjoys 4-H shows as much as the girls. I think it's because he didn't have the opportunity growing up."

The Bailys operated two farms about three miles apart. They live on 110-acre farm that has been passed down through his mother's side, but also farm his father's 131-acre farm, where his 83-year-old mother still lives.

They family cannot determine how old the Baily family farm actually is. But it is believed to have been built in the 1700s. A Chester County history book published in 1881 shows a drawing of the Baily farm.

"It looks the same today as it did back then," Baily reported with obvious pride. Wooded rail fences line the farm lane that continues at least a quarter of mile. The original stone barn and several other outdoor buildings are still in use, but a 400-head freestall barn and a milking parlor and milk house were added in the 1950s and 1960s. Red barn calf pens matching the red barns on the property have been erected to house three calves to a pen.

A kitchen, bathroom, and new windows were added to the farmstead, but other than that the horsehair plastered walls, the large rounded deep windowsills, and wooden floors are still in the original condition.

Family heirlooms brought from England have been passed down through the centuries. "The Bailys have always liked old things. We don't know how old the things are, it's just part of us and has always been here," said Baily's mother Dorthea. Her husband Eusebius died in 1983.

It's evident that a grandfather's clock is extremely old, but no date appears on it. Inside the clock, dates are written of when it was repaired. The oldest date marked is 1827.

Although it has not been determined how old the farmhouse where his mother lives is, the Baily family's farmhouse was built in 1730.

"I don't push for high production. I believe in encouraging a long life span by keeping cows in good health and producing a calf every year," Baily said.

"I heard some push their cows so hard that they get only two lactations. I don't believe in that. I have some on their 10th lactation."

His wife said, "He has one that is 18 years old."

"Don't tell other farmers that. They'll think I'm crazy," Baily said with feigned embarrassment. "But that is my best Blue Lineback. It's a pet."

His wife added, "I always say every pasture needs a pasture ornament and that is what it is."

Speaking of pastures, Baily is a firm believer in putting the cows out to graze. However, he does not follow intensive grazing practices.

"I think intensive grazing is a great idea, and I almost made the switch two years ago, but I got cold feet because of potential water problems," he said.

Dry cows and heifers are completely pastured during the warmer months until Thanksgiving.

John Stidhum, the Baily's herdsman for 11 years, calls the farm "The Bailey Zoo." A peacock, a Red Bourban turkey, Silie chickens, and even a mule, about which Jane published a children's book. It's a farm that school classes enjoy touring.

Stidhum milks 110 cows every day but once a week, Baily fills in for him. Baily takes care of the calves and replacements and much of the field work.

Baily helped organize a Lineback promotional sale in May at the New Holland Sales Stable and is planning another one in the spring of 1998.

"Heifers were shipped in from New York, Maryland, and as far away as Wisconsin," he said. "Prices were above average because there was so much interest in the breed."

Baily maintains that Linebacks are genetically superior to other breeds. He said, "They have good longevity, strong legs, udders and

Jane follows the tradition of her ancestors who were of the Lenapi tribe. She did the intricate beadwork that appears on the bag, which is traditionally made in pairs and used for storage on either side of a horse while traveling. Jane founded the Lenape Honoring Festival held annually on the Baily farm. Thousands of people attend the festival, which will be held this year on Sept. 13-14, from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Lineback Cattle,

are capable of high milk volume and protein. They are suited well for grazing and free-stall housing because they are so docile."

Jane said that her husband enjoys handling cows except for the milking which his hired hand does. This frees her to pursue other interests. Her most time-consuming and fulfilling interest is organizing a Lenape Honoring Festival. The fourth annual festival will be held on the Baily farm on Saturday, Sept. 13, and Sunday, Sept. 14, from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Jane is a native Lenape, who carries on traditions of her tribe that settled in the area until the government forced the tribe to relocate.

"The festival is held to honor future generations and our ancestors," Jane said.

Three clans exist in the Lenapi tribe: wolf, turtle, and the wild turkey of which Jane is a clan mother or elder. Her Indian name is Dancing Leaves, although, Jane said, the name can change throughout life.

From 2,000 to 4,000 people attend the annual festival. Native singing, dancing, and arts and crafts will be featured. The assortment of crafts include work by Lenape, Seminole, Navajo, Zuni, Sioux, Cherokee, and South American artists.

Native handiwork will include dolls, jewelry, flutes, knives, traditional herbs, leather, beadwork, books, furniture, clothing, paintings, clay miniatures, bison robes, long bows, beekeeping products, Indian corn, and grourd artistry.

Drums will be played by the Lenape Red Thunder. The Georgie Jessup performance will include rock and folk music with a native slant.

The festival is entered through the Myrick Conservation Center located at Rt. 842, West Chester.

"The festival is so isolated that it's almost like walking into another world," Jane said.

According to Jane, there are 600 people living in Pennsylvania who are Lenapis. Unfortunately, she said, the government does not recognize them. When a census was taken in the area, she reported that she was Lenapi, but the published reports said that no Indians live in the area.

According to Jane, the government considers no Indians exist unless there are at least 50 settled in the same area.

She enjoys following the traditions of the Lenapi. She often prepares meals such as a corn dish with three kinds of corn, and buffalo, bear, venison, and goose.

Jane and others working at the two-day festival will be dressed in regalia.

"Never say costume," she said of referring to an Indian's clothing.

Other taboos are strangers touching parts of the regalia or taking pictures without permission during the ceremonies.

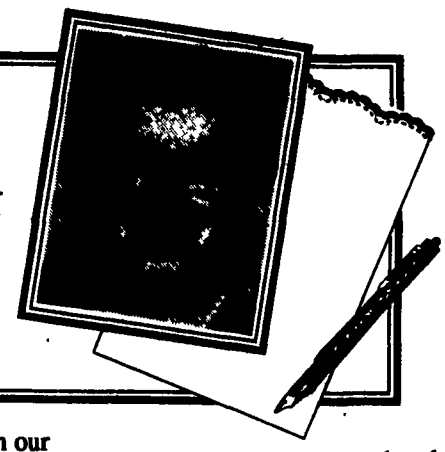
Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser



When we came home from our week in the mountains, one of the first things that we did was to check our gardens. In one garden we found more "Roly-Poly" zucchini than we could use. And, the broccoli was ready to harvest plus the beans.

In the other garden we found, five cantaloupes and a few cucumbers. This definitely is not the year that I can 120 pints of pickles. It is quite dry and that affects many of our vegetables, although the tomatoes are bearing quite well.

While some visiting grandchildren were at our home, I decided to dig potatoes. It is a job that they seem to enjoy. Each shovelful turns up a surprise of big and little potatoes. They like to see who can grab them first and put them in the basket. Even the youngest wants to put his boot on the shovel and help me to dig.

I'm amazed at the wide variety of colors in my gladiolas. They are rather small due to the drought but they range from lavender to deep red with many being yellow and orange. The cannas are bright red and the calendulas are yellow or orange. Allen's roses are not as nice as other years but I still manage to keep some on the kitchen table.

My sister and her husband just celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. They were quite surprised as their daughter flew in from Arizona. She gave them a large bouquet of 50 very beautiful roses. A niece came from western Pennsylvania and everyone enjoyed visiting together.

People say the days fly by faster as we get older, and I guess that is true. Next year Allen and I hope to celebrate our 50th anniversary.

FLY & ODOR CONTROL

BIG PERFORMANCE...SMALL PRICE

SIMPLE PROCEDURE: the aerator works directly into the bed of material, forming its own windrow. Windrows can be formed from piles of nearly any size. Alleyways are not required when using the Brown aerator, so there is a great reduction in space requirements. The aerator's reverse rotation works the material from the bottom up, and to the side, assuring complete mixing and agitation. LOW MAINTENANCE: the aerator is a simple design, the principle as a material mover has been proven with over 30 years experience in practical application. The aerator is hydraulically driven and equipped with patented wearplates or paddles, both of which are easily replaced.

WORK WATCH

Still Running Strong

In past years we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. A watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. The BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your watch stops running within TWO YEARS of the date of purchase the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge.

To receive your new work watch, complete the coupon below and send it with your payment. Your work watch will arrive shortly.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

"What's 'dat, Gramma?"

"That's Caleb, Josh. He's your new brother. Be gentle, Josh. Caleb's only five days old and we must be very gentle with new babies."

"That's sweet, Josh, sharing your blanket with baby Caleb. And it was nice to share your Pooh Bear with him."

"No, Josh, we don't put blankets on tiny baby's heads. Let's just put it, gently, around his little toes."

"What's 'dat, Gramma?"

"Those are blueberry bushes, Josh. They get berries like we had in the muffins at breakfast. Do you remember? Your daddy planted them in the garden here at your new house. How about if you and grandma pull the weeds around daddy's bushes?"

"No, Josh, we just pull the grass around the bushes. No, Josh, that tomato is still green. We must let it on the plant until it turns red; then we can pick it. No, Josh, don't eat the green tomato. Yuck, that doesn't taste very good, does it? Let's throw the green tomato over on daddy's compost pile."

"Here, Josh, let's dig up ground. Let's not pull the lettuce. It's not ready yet. We must let it grow and get bigger so we can use it in sandwiches."

"Where's tractor, Gramma?"

"Your tractor is over there, Josh. On the patio. Can you hook up your wagon and ride your tractor to the garden? No, Josh, let's not ride your tractor in mommy's flowers. Mommy wants them to be pretty."

"Should we take the old flowers off mommy's plants, Josh, so they can grow more pretty ones? Here, let grandma put the dead ones in your wagon and we can haul them to the compost pile."

"No, Josh, let's not pull the pretty flowers off the plants. Mommy still wants those. We only take off the old, yucky ones."

"Who 'dat, Gramma?"

"It's Grandpa, Josh. He called us on the phone, from Pennsylvania. Grandpa says we have a new baby calf. And it rained a little bit, to help the hay grow to feed the cows."

"Me go, Pennsylvania?"

"Yes, Josh, in just a few weeks, you and Mommy and baby Caleb will ride in airplane to Pennsylvania to visit all your grandmas and grandpas and help feed the baby calves. No, Caleb is too little to help feed the calves. But you're two and you're big enough to help feed the calves and pet the cows and maybe even go fishing."

"Fix combine, Gramma."

"Gosh, Josh, this header just won't stay on your toy combine. I don't think grandma can fix this. I think we need grandpa to fix this. How about if we play in the dirt pile with your dump truck and loaders instead?"

"Read, Gramma."

"OK, Josh, which book should we read? Gosh, that's a big armful of books, Josh. Are we going to read all those books?"

"Kitty, Gramma?"

"Yes, Josh, look at the kitty out in your yard. That kitty came to visit from the neighbors. It's hiding in the flowers, watching all your squirrels. The squirrels don't like that kitty. Yes, Josh, grandma has a kitty. Her name is Monker. You can pet Monker when you come to Pennsylvania."

"What you doin', Gramma?"

"Grandma has to pack her clothes, Josh. She has to go home to Grandpa and help feed the baby calves. You can come visit soon, but now you must stay in Portland and help Mommy and Daddy with baby Caleb and help take care of the garden and help daddy water his new grass."

"What's dat, Gramma?"

"That's tears, Josh. Grandma is going to miss you and baby Caleb very, very much."

Being a cross-country, long-distance "Gramma" was not part of my original Plan for life.

But sometimes, like with so many of the surprises life offers each one of us, we just have to make the best of Plan B.

Gary M. Chan, M.D., professor of pediatrics at the College of Medicine at the University of Utah, recenty addressed the Pennsylvania Academy of Family Physicians annual meeting. Delegates representing family practitioners from throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania attended the presentation. Sponsored by the Dairy Councils of Pennsylvania, Dr. Chan's presentation, "The Growing Calcium Crisis," focused on the need for calcium, best found in dairy foods, for bone development. Bone health is dependent on adequate calcium intake. Studies indicate that only 35 percent of Americans meet the recommended daily requirements for calcium — a growing concern for family physicians. Help For The Bee-Weary

SPRING MILLS (Centre Co.) — Every year throughout the United States, bees, wasps, hornets, and yellowjackets take aim on 25 million unsuspecting Americans. To hlep you better cope with this late summer hazard, the National Jewish Medical and Research Center in Denver offers the following tips:

1. Elderly people, in general, have more severe reactions to insect stings because of cardiac complications.

2. Young adults and children are stung more often because they spend more time outdoors.

3. Insect stings typically cause localized pain and swelling that can last for 24 hours. If you are allergic, symptoms can be as serious as dizziness, breathing difficulty, unconsciousness, and even death.

4. No particular type of stinging insect is more likely to cause an allergic reaction than another.

5. Allergists can treat insect allergies with a vaccination program that uses purified insect venoms. This process is 98 percent successful in protecting you from another allergic reaction.

6. Allergic individuals who rely on injectable epinephrine (bee sting kits) to protect them if they are stung, can be in trouble if they are far from a medical care facility. Sometimes multiple injections and other treatments are necessary as well.

To lessen your chances of being stung this summer: keep outdoor food and trash areas covered whenever possible, avoid wearing bright colored clothing or fragrant perfume, and don't walk bare foot in the grass or drink from open beverage cans. For more information on insect stings and allergic reactions, call 1-800-23 STING.

Labor Day Cookout Marks Summer's End

It's hard to beat the taste and texture of foods cooked over an open flame. A Labor Day cookout that sizzles with the aroma of meat, potatoes, and corn on the cob is sure to meet everyone's expectations.

Here are recipes that our readers enjoy serving at a cookout.

BASIC BURGER

2 pounds ground round
2 teaspoons salt or to taste
¼ teaspoon black pepper

Combine all ingredients and form lightly into six burgers. Broil or grill to desired degree of doneness. Makes 6.

HERBED BURGERS

2 pounds ground round
1 tablespoon minced fresh chives
1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 teaspoon minced garlic

Combine all ingredients and form six burgers. Broil or grill as desired. Makes 6.

GRILLED POTATO SALAD

2 pounds red potatoes, cut into ¼-inch slices
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 large red onion, cut into ¼-inch slices
⅔ cup coarsely chopped parsley
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
1 cup nonfat yogurt
3 tablespoons balsamic or cider vinegar
2 celery ribs, thinly sliced
Salt and pepper to taste

Heat grill to medium hot. In a large bowl, toss potato slices with oil and grill for 4 to 5 minutes on each side, until well browned and marked. Return to bowl and set aside to cool. Grill onions for 2 to 3 minutes on each side, until marked and slightly softened. Add to bowl and set aside to cool.

In a small bowl, combine parsley, mustard, yogurt, vinegar, celery, salt, and pepper. Pour over potatoes and onions, tossing well, and set aside for a few minutes to allow flavors to blend before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Per serving: 225 cal., 5 g protein, 5 g fat, 39 g carb, 464.5 mg sod, .8 mg chol, 4 g fiber.

Veggie Life

For the perfect burger, grill on one side approximately 5 to 6 minutes, turn at a 90 degree angle to produce defined grill marks on one side. After four minutes, turn the burger over and continue cooking second side. Do not continously turn the burger from side to side or it will cool and lose precious juices. Never press the cheeseburger with a spatula—this drains the meat of all flavor.

ROCKY ROAD CRISPIE TREAT

9 cups Cocoa Pebbles or Cocoa Krispies
10-ounce package mini marshmallows, frozen
12-ounce milk chocolate bits
12-ounce English walnuts, broken
16-ounce package mini or regular marshmallow, cut up
½ cup butter

In a very large mixing bowl, combine pebbles, frozen marshmallows, milk chocolate bits, and walnuts. Stir to blend.

In a large frying pan or wok, melt the butter. Add the marshmallows and stir until all are melted.

Working quickly, pour the melted marshmallows over the pebbles mixture and stir quickly to coat all the ingredients.

Transfer to a buttered jelly roll pan and pat down. Cool and slice into desired-size pieces and serve.

You could make small amounts but you will need the large recipe to satisfy everyone.

To make white rocky road crispy treats, use regular rice crispies and white chocolate treats.

BURGER TOPPINGS

Top burgers with one or more of the following:

Thinly sliced raw onion
Thinly sliced raw tomatoes
Barbecue or chili sauce or ketchup
Ketchup or chili sauce mixed with horse radish
Sliced dill pickle or bread and butter pickles
Sauteed mushrooms
Sauteed onions
Lettuce
Hot chili sauce and lettuce
Mixed sauces:

Combine any of the following ingredients, heat on side of grill until sizzling, and spoon over cooked hamburger.

¼ cup butter, ¼ cup chili sauce, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, and dash chili powder

⅓ cup butter and 3 tablespoons chopped chives or fresh dill

¼ cup butter
4 tablespoons crumbled blue cheese

1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, dash tabasco, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, juice of half a lemon

⅓ cup butter, 1 tablespoon horseradish, and 1 mashed clove of garlic

HOT BARBECUE SAUCE

2½-3 pounds chili peppers
30 pounds tomatoes
3 cups onions, chopped
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon oregano
½ cup vinegar

Caution: Wear rubber gloves while handling chilis or wash hands thoroughly with soap and water before touching your face. Wash and dry chilis. Slit the sides of peppers and peel them using one of the following methods:

Oven or broiler method: Place chilis in 400 degree oven or broiler 6-8 minutes or until skin blisters.

Range-top method: Cover hot burner, either gas or electric, with heavy wire mesh. Place chilis on burner for several minutes or until skin blisters.

Allow peppers to cool. Place in a pan and cover with a damp cloth. This will make peeling the peppers easier. After several minutes, peel each pepper. Cool and slip off skins. Discard seeds and chop peppers. If desired, leave skins on and grind on coarsely chop peppers. Wash tomatoes and dip in boiling water for 30 to 60 seconds or until skins split. Dip in cold water, slip off skins, and remove cores. Coarsely chop tomatoes and combine chopped peppers and remaining ingredients in a large kettle. Bring to a boil. Simmer, uncovered, 2 to 3 hours or until the initial volume is reduced by one-third to one-half. Stir frequently to avoid burning. Fill jars, leaving 1-inch headspace. Adjust lids and process 20 minutes in pressure canner.

Featured Recipe

Looking for a way to use an abundance of tomatoes?

Try this recipe shared at a salsa workshop taught by Nancy Wiker, family living agent for Lancaster County Extension.

Salsa, a Mexican word for sauce meaning cooked or fresh mixtures, is making inroads in the tastes of American people. While many associate salsa with spicy hot tomato mixtures on which to dip tortillo chips, salsa does not necessarilly include tomatoes and hot peppers. For recipes for fruit salsa and other varieties, look for featured story on the workshop found in this section.

Here is a recipe for your enjoyment.

TOMATO SALSA
(using slicing tomatoes)

4 cups peeled, cored, chopped tomatoes
2 cups seeded, chopped long green chiles
½ cup seeded, chopped jalapeno peppers
¾ cups chopped onions
4 cloves garlic, finely chopped
2 cups vinegar
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 tablespoon oregano leaves
1 tablespoon fresh cilantro
1½ teaspoons salt

Combine all ingredients in a large saucepan and bring the mixture to a boil, stirring frequently. Reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Ladle hot into pint jars, leaving ½-inch headspace. Adjust lids and process in a boiling water canner: 15 minutes. Yield: 4 pints.

Helping With The Homework

It's hard to believe that summer has come and gone and that another school year has started. With the school year getting into gear, it's a good time to start establishing good study habits. To help your student study smarter try some of the following tips:

Schedule regular study periods.

Set aside regularly scheduled study times. The most effective way to learn is to rehearse regularly. Whether it is practicing the piano, playing sports or reviewing academic material, learning happens through the principle of repetition.

Establish a designated/ permanent study area.

When a student becomes conditioned to study in the same place, their mind will automatically kick into gear, even when they do not feel like studying.

A designated area also gives a permanent place to keep notes, textbooks, pens and other supplies. They will not waste 10 minutes each day collecting the materials they need — they'll already be there.

Study short and often.

The brain takes in information faster and retains it better if it is not overloaded. Short study periods are more effective than two long ones for two reasons: (1) frequent repetition is the key to building memory; and (2) if there is a long time between study periods, a good portion of the material studied may be lost.

Start study sessions on time.

It sounds like a small detail, but it's amazing how quickly those 10-minute delays add up. Use every minute of the time scheduled for study.

Study the most difficult subjects first.

Students are most alert when they first sit down, so encourage them to tackle the tough stuff first. They also feel better getting the worst out of the way, and won't be tempted to spend all of their time on easier or favorite subjects.

Start assignments as soon as they are given.

A little work on an assignment will allow the student to give attention to its quality. The workload will be spread out, avoiding a log jam just before it is due. A calendar to help with scheduling is extremely important.

Problem solve.

For courses that require problem solving, such as math, physics, or chemistry spend a good portion of the study time working problems. If the student gets stuck on a problem, don't spend too much time on it. Go to the next question and ask for help the next day.

Study when you are wide awake.

Decide what the best time is and try to schedule study time accordingly. We all accomplish more when we are alert.

Review notes regularly.

Taking good notes is the first step, reviewing them regularly is the second. The best way to learning anything is to review the information often (aloud, too).

Take regular breaks.

A general rule of thumb is a 10-minute break for every 60 minutes of studying. Don't study through breaks. They rejuvenate the student for the next hour of studying.

Reward.

When a student completes a goal, give a reward. It doesn't have to be anything elaborate — a snack, a movie, a TV show. The reward system is an incentive to reach goals and a pat on the back for achieving them.

Keep on top of it.

Letting work pile up can leave an overwhelming task. Identify the problem as soon as possible and don't let it become unmanageable.

Helping your student create good study habits is a great step toward success both in to school and future career. Good luck during the coming school year and remember school will be out in 10 months.

4-H HAPPENINGS

4-H TEEN LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

Four Bucks County 4-H teens participated in a regional 4-H Leadership Conference recently at Millersville University.

Vicki Miller, daughter of Preston and Mary Miller, and Julia Krout, daughter of Rebecca Krout, both of Perkasie, represented the Hilltown 4-H Club. Kirsten Lindsay, daughter of Donald and Diane Lindsay, Riegelsville, represented Springtown 4-H Club. Miriam Jankiewicz, daughter of Robert and Martha Jankiewicz, Chalfont, represented the veterinary science project.

Teens participated in a communications fair, where they fine-tuned their interviewing, writing, public speaking and communication skills. They also selected workshops from topics involving teen issues, community service and team building skills. Other conference activities helped to develop leadership skills which youth can practice in their 4-H clubs, school groups and other organizations.

Paws And Tails

The club met on Aug. 4. The members did some heeling, sit stays, down stays, and a stand stay. Then they did an out of sight sit stay. They also did a sit exercise, and ended with some finishes.

Several members from the club went to Penn State for the State Achievement Days event and competed in the Canine Bowl and Skillathon activities. Individuals placed second, third, and fourth in the Skillathon and sixth in the team competition. The club celebrated by having a pizza party.

Dimock Community

The club meeting was held on Aug. 8. Ben Hibbard discussed the responsibilities of being a 4-H ambassador. A 4-H ambassador tells people about 4-H and what members and leaders do in 4-H Shana Mack, Lucas Mack, and Ben talked about dairy roundup. Ben Hibbard and Kevin Nesta told about the 4-H One Day Trip to Baltimore, Md. Shana Mack, Robert Squier, Jessica Squier, Kyle Karpich, Ben Hibbard, and Kevin Nesta did demonstrations. The next meeting will be Sept. 12.

North Jackson Ag & Community Club

The club held a brief meeting at the 4-H Dairy Roundup on the Harford Fairgrounds. Twelve members and six leaders were present. The meeting was called to order by President Matt Pavelski.

Secretary Heather Pease called the roll. The president next asked if anyone needed extra help on projects or had any project problems while getting ready for roundup. At the next meeting on Aug. 4, to be held at the home of Lloyd and Denise Pease, a demonstration will be done by Becky Empet.

The North Jackson Ag Club hosted the Montrose Junior Clovers Club with Holly Squier and Brandy Tator, cooperative extension summer assistants. The meeting started with Brandy telling about the "Blue Ribbon 4-H Club Award" papers. Then, Holly had the members do a project on communication and told how important it is to improve their skills. Next, Becky Empet did a demonstration on how to strengthen sports-related injuries. Before refreshments were served, each member introduced himself/herself and told what projects he/she was taking for this year.

ANSWER — Susan Burkholder wanted a recipe for vegetable pizza without cream cheese. Alvernia Martin writes that cream cheese can be replaced with the same amount of pureed cottage cheese, regular or fat free. Put cottage cheese into blender and blend until smooth. If you need to add a little liquid, water or milk will be ok. Thanks to Debbie Burkholder for sending two recipes.

Vegetable Pizza

¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup boiling water

Stir until dissolved. Cool. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon yeast in ¼ cup warm water. Let stand a few minutes. Add to above mixture. Add:

Mix well and cool. Butter hands and spread on cookie sheet or pizza pan and press evenly. Bake at 325 degrees until golden brown (does not take long).

Add 1 package Hidden Valley Ranch or Zesty Italian dressint to one pint sour cream. Mix, spread on cooled crust.

Top with finely cut broccoli, cauliflower, pepper, celery, carrots, and tomatoes. Top with shredded cheese.

May also add chopped onion and bacon bits.

Serves 7-8.

Vegetable Pizza

Pineapple Upside Down Cake

Melt 1 teaspoon butter in each muffin tin (set in oven). Add 1 tablespoon brown sugar to each cup and stir until well blended. Put slice of pineapple into each cup. (If slices do not fit, substitute pineapple tidbits).

Batter:
3 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
1½ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon baking powder
½ cup milk

Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and cream until light. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Divide batter evenly among the cups. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes or until tests done.

Invert on a cookie sheet (place sheet upside down onto muffin tin and flip. Serve with whipped topping if desired.

SHRIMP DEVILED EGGS

6 hard cooked eggs
¼ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
4-ounce can tiny shrimp

Slice eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks and place in medium size bowl. Place whites on plate and put in refrigerator to chill.

Mash yolks with fork until very fine, add mayonnaise and mustard and whip with fork or use mixer and beat until smooth.

Drain shrimp, remove 12 shrimp and set aside. Crush the remainder of shrimp and add to egg yolk mixture. Stir to mix thoroughly. Spoon mixture into the 12 halves of egg whites and top with a shrimp on each one. Refrigerate 4 to 6 hours before serving. Serves 6 to 12.

Other variations:

2 talepoons bacon bits instead of shrimp. Put a pinch on top of each filled egg.

Green onions: Instead of shrimp, add 2 tablespoons finely chopped green onion with 1 teaspoon for a pinch on top of each egg.

CHEESY SCALLOPED POTATOES

¼ cup sliced onions
½ cup butter
¼ cup flour
2½ cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¾ cup shredded American cheese
Sliced potatoes

To make sauce, cook onions in butter until tender but not brown. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk, stir and heat until thickened. Stir in cheese until melted. Remove from heat. Place half the potatoes in a greased 2-quart casserole. Cover with half the sauce. Repeat layers. Bake covered at 350 degrees for 45 minutes, stirring once. Cook's Question

ANSWER — Some recipes that came in too late to include with the tomato recipes are included here for those who are looking for ways to use a prolific crop. Thanks to Nita Smith, Bellefonte, and Alverna Martin for sending recipes.

Tomato Juice Cake

2 cups brown sugar
½ cup shortening
2 eggs
2 tablespoons cocoa (mixed with hot water to form paste)
2 cups sifted flour
1 cup tomato juice
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¾ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking soda (added last, mixed with 2 teaspoons warm water)

Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and cocoa mixture. Add dry ingredients alternately with juice. Add baking soda last. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes or until done.

Tomato Gravy

4 large tomatoes, diced
1 small onion, diced
Salt and pepper
1 tablespoon flour mixed with ¼ cup milk
Pinch or two of baking soda

Saute onion lightly in just enough butter so it does not stick; add tomatoes seasoned with salt and pepper, cook over medium heat until tomatoes are hot. Put in a pinch or two of baking soda, it will foam, add flour and milk, stirring constantly until it is of desired consistency. Serve hot over mashed potatoes or toast.

Nita Smith writes: I absolutely love this. My father liked his tomato gravy made with green tomatoes. Make green same as red only omit the baking soda with the green tomatoes. (Why omit the soda with the green tomatoes? I don't know, my mother told me to!)

ANSWER — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.V., wanted a fat-free fruit-based replacement for butter or oil in baking. Thanks to Alvernia Martin for writing that applesauce or pureed prunes can be substituted cup for cup or, if preferred, half the amount in recipes requesting shortening, oil, etc.

Puree seedless prunes in the blender. Add a little water and blend until smooth.

Experiment with this because it doesn't work well in recipes such as apple crisp, but it works in lots of cake, bar, and cookie recipes. Sometimes it will result in a heavier product.

ANSWER — Kathryn Kreider, Jonestown, wanted information on how to make and can pickled garlic, and how to make vinegar from apple cider and from other fruit wines. Thanks to Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.V., for sending recipes.

Cider Vinegar

Select ripe, sound apples, wash thoroughly and extract juice in a cider press. Place juice in a large receptable and allow to stand for a few days. Drain, leaving sediment in bottom undisturbed. Wash out barrels or kegs in which it is to be placed as thoroughly as possible with boiling water. Fill them ¾ full with the juice. Leave hung out but place a loose plug of cotton to prevent dirt from falling in. For each five gallons in barrel, add one cake compressed yeast dissolved in lukewarm water. Keep barrels at a temperature of 75-85 degrees if possible. As soon as the alcoholic fermentation ceases, which will take several months, drain out clear liquid, rinse barrels and put the clear liquid back again, filling the barrels ¾ full. Add from 2 to 4 quarts vinegar containing more or less "Mother" for each 5 gallons liquid. Store barrels in as warm a place as possible until vinegar is made. This usually requires from 6-12 months. Then fill barrels full and bring them tight.

Honey Vinegar

Mix together 1 quart strained honey and 8 quarts warm water. Allow mixture to stand in a warm place until fermentation ceases. Seal in clean canning jars.

The resulting vinegar is white and of excellent quality.

Fruit Vinegars Or Shrubs

Dissolve 2 cups sugar in 1 cup vinegar, heat to boiling and pour over 2 quarts ripe berries. Let stand one hour or more, stirring at intervals. Allow the juice to drip through jelly bag, bring to boil and pour into clean hot canning jars and process 10 minutes in hot water bath canner.

Serve on cracked ice with equal amounts of carbonated water.

Kids Korner

Kids At The Fair

Although it was difficult for 10-year-old Brian Gelb to part with his supreme champion goat, the parting made it a bit more acceptable by knowing the goat was going for a good cause. Mrs. Walter Heistand bought the goat then donated it back to be resold at the Elizabethtown Fair. The money was given to the Chiques Church of the Brethren's Disaster Relief Auction to help those in need. Brian is the son of Earl and Sandy Gelb of Manheim.

Above, Obie the Clown delights kids of all ages by twisting balloons into animals or into a knight's armour.

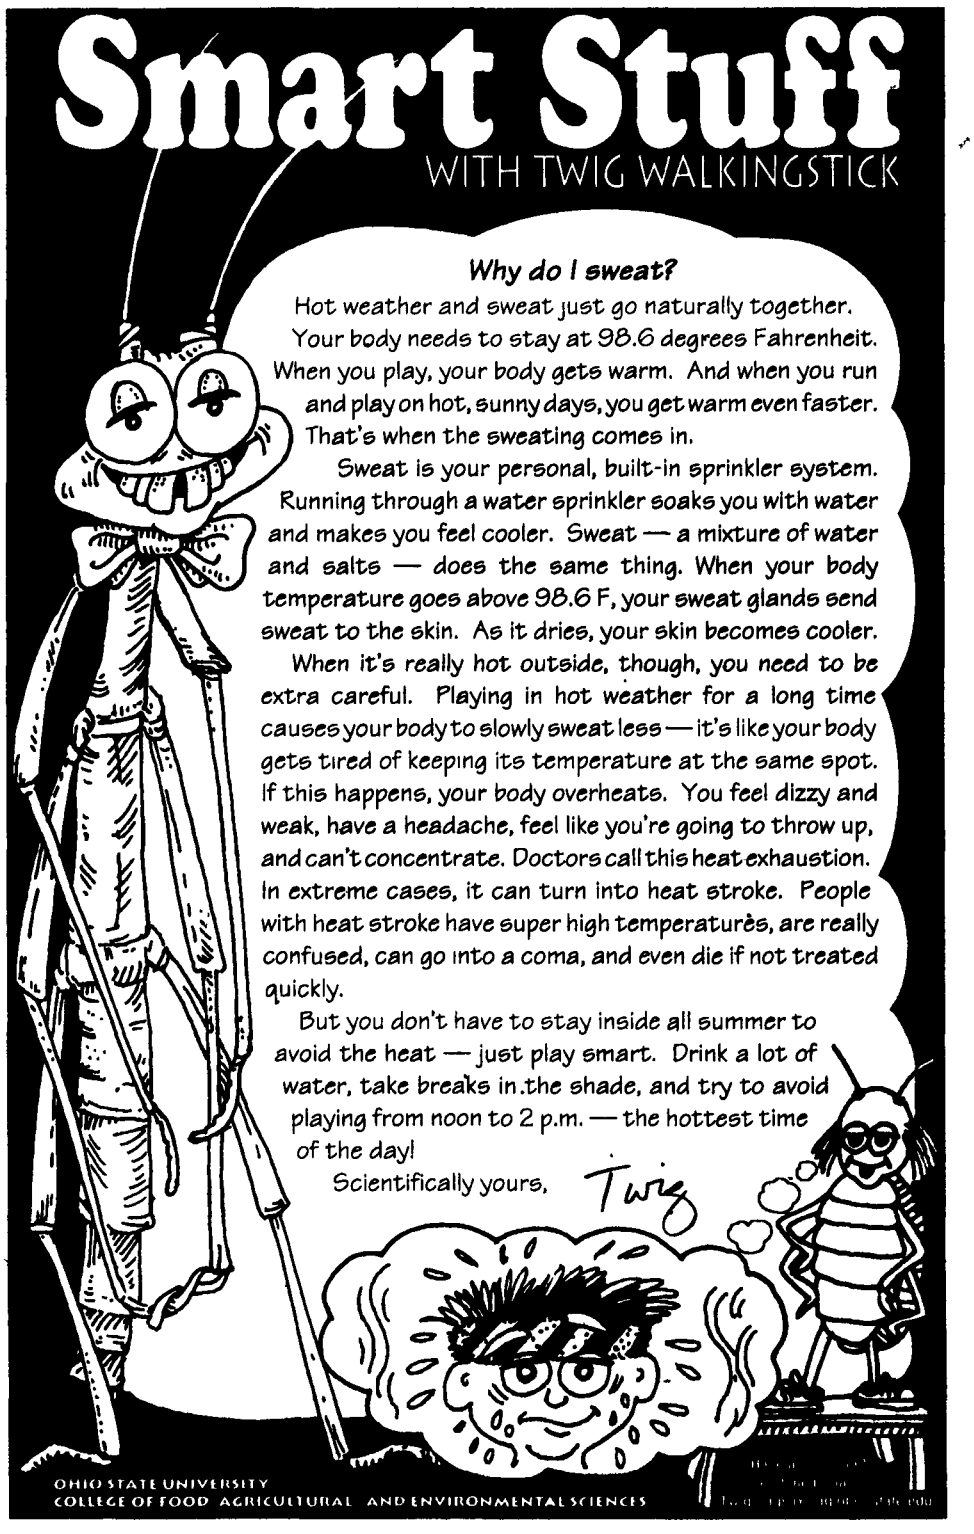
Dana Haldeman, 2, is intriqued by the many sights of the Elizathbethtown Fair held last week.

At the Schuylkill County Fair, Brandon Creyer, 2-year-old son of Mark and Kay Creyer, delights in this 4-H'er of the future.



Smart Stuff
WITH TWIG WALKINGSTICK
Why do I sweat?
Hot weather and sweat just go naturally together. Your body needs to stay at 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. When you play, your body gets warm. And when you run and play on hot, sunny days, you get warm even faster. That's when the sweating comes in.
Sweat is your personal, built-in sprinkler system. Running through a water sprinkler soaks you with water and makes you feel cooler. Sweat — a mixture of water and salts — does the same thing. When your body temperature goes above 98.6 F, your sweat glands send sweat to the skin. As it dries, your skin becomes cooler.
When it's really hot outside, though, you need to be extra careful. Playing in hot weather for a long time causes your body to slowly sweat less — it's like your body gets tired of keeping its temperature at the same spot. If this happens, your body overheats. You feel dizzy and weak, have a headache, feel like you're going to throw up, and can't concentrate. Doctors call this heat exhaustion. In extreme cases, it can turn into heat stroke. People with heat stroke have super high temperatures, are really confused, can go into a coma, and even die if not treated quickly.
But you don't have to stay inside all summer to avoid the heat — just play smart. Drink a lot of water, take breaks in the shade, and try to avoid playing from noon to 2 p.m. — the hottest time of the day!
Scientifically yours,
Twig

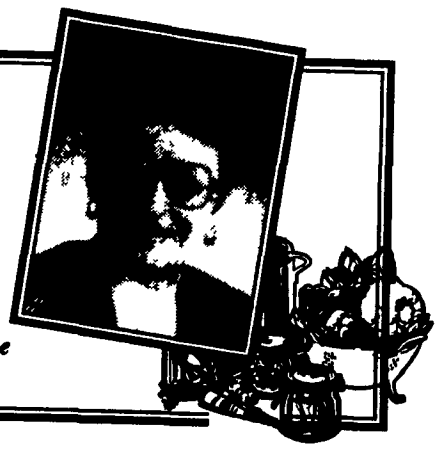
Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Having grown up in an era when nutrition science was in its infancy, many older Americans today harbor nutrition myths and misconceptions. This may be harmful, especially when exaggerated claims are widespread by the media, for such nutritional miracles as quickie diets or foods said to prevent or cure various ailments.

Increasingly, in recent years, the media have bombarded us with so-called nutrition information. We have diverse and often conflicting advice, frequently from self-styled experts, on supposedly healthful and harmful foods and diets. It is all too easy to fall prey to inaccurate information, especially if you have decreasing interest in food. Cooking for one may be less challenging, for example, and physical changes of aging sometimes affect the ability to taste salty, sour and sweet foods.

Here are some of the most common nutrition misbeliefs, misconceptions and nutrition claims — are they facts or fallacies?

• Vitamins and minerals give energy. They don't. Believing this, many senior citizens take potentially harmful and needlessly expenisve pills or supplements, and avoid eating adequate amounts of energy sources such as carbohydrates and fats.

Approximately 37 percent of American adults take a daily multivitamin pill. Some even take extra vitamins and minerals as well, especially vitamin C. Yet most of these supplements are unnecessary for people of any age. A well-balanced diet should provide all of your nutritional needs. High doses of some vitamins, such as A and D, can be harmful. Large amounts of some supplements can upset the natural balance of nutrients normally maintained by the body. Large doses, call megavitamins can act like drugs, with potentially serious results.

While researchers continue to learn more about how nutrient requirements change during aging, eating a balanced diet containing foods from the Food Guide Pyramid is the best approach to getting the nutrients you need. Before you decide to take a nutritional supplement, discuss it with your doctor or dietitian.

• Water is fattening. It's not. Fearing this, some people don't drink enough water. As we get older, reduced kidney function increases the need for liquid.

• Worried about too many calories in carbohydrates, older adults often substitute fatty foods, not realizing such foods have more than twice as many calories per gram.

• Some foods can cure such problems as arthritis. False again. Eating a variety of foods helps provide what is needed in a nutritious diet, but some foods are more "nutrient dense"; others are more "calorie dense." Absolutely no foods or diets have been proven to prevent or cure arthritis.

Men and women over 60 need two or more servings, daily, of milk or milk products. Consuming at least 1000 mg of calcium per day may help to prevent osteoporosis, which can lead to spontaneous bone fractures. Nutritionally balanced meals are important, including foods rich in iron and those that increase iron absorption, such as oranges and other foods rich in Vitamin C.

Work hard to overcome any decreasing interest in food. Plan attractive and varied meals, set a pretty table, and try eating by a window. If you live alone, whenever possible invite a friend to share the cooking or at least the food.

Finally, take nutrition advice only from reliable sources, such as a public health nutritionist, a registered dietitian, or your county extension home economist.

Harvest Festival Celebrates Agriculture

PENNS CREEK (Snyder Co.) — The Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) is preparing for its annual Harvest Festival, held at Walnut Acres Organic Farms, Saturday, Oct. 4 from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.

The PASA Harvest Festival is an opportunity to spend a day celebrating farming and agriculture, Pennsylvania's largest industry, in a unique way, offering fun, information, and good food.

New to the festival this year is an added attraction, "Celebrate Agriculture." This area will showcase Pennsylvania foods and flowers with events such as cooking demonstrations, food tasting, flower arranging demonstrations, and educational seminars. There will be delicious home cooked foods for sale, from homemade apple pie to gourmet salsas, along with fresh produce sales. A wide variety of flower arrangements, wreaths and swags will also be for sale.

Exploring the grounds, visitors will find a broad range of activities that promise to make a spectacular day for all. Demonstrations on sheepherding, draft horse plowing, blacksmithing, and beekeeping will take you to Pennsylvania farm life. A beautiful shady grove is the setting for country craft demonstrations. The fun continues with hayrides and buggy and pony rides. Live music by Stained Glass Window will keep spirits high, and festival goers will also delight to the strolling Celtic musician, Judy Marti.

Ongoing seminars will offer a large variety of topics ranging from how to make soap using natural ingredients, to a talk on Pennsylvania apple varieties. Visitors will have the opportunity to learn how to apply the principles of organic farming in their own farms and gardens, how to raise a culinary garden, and how to create meals using the principles of seasonal eating.

Natural food walks will take two different roads. One choice will be to discover edible wild foods on guided tours through wooded paths at the farm. The other choice is to tour the famous Walnut Acres cannery, mill, and bakery. Both tours give new insight to natural foods.

Children can enjoy the day with activities planned just for them. A special children's area will feature a hunt for buried treasure in Farmer Brown's haystack and a chance to learn about bugs, slugs, and other garden friends.

Admission is $5 for adults and $3 for ages 12-17. Children under 12 are free. All admission proceeds benefit PASA.

Walnut Acres is 60 miles north of Harrisburg. For more information or directions to the festival, contact Walnut Acres at (800) 433-3998 or PASA at (814) 349-9856.

Some Like It Hot, Some Like It Cold But Salsa Satisfies Everyone's Tastes

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Fruit salsa, Salsa Cruda, Tomatillo Green Salsa, and more were included in the salsa workshop taught on Tuesday by Nancy Wiker, family living agent for Lancaster County Extension.

Participants in the workshop had the opportunity to taste-test four different salsa varieties and even take home a jar of canned salsa made during the session held at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster.

Salsa, a Mexican word for sauce meaning cooked or fresh mixtures, is making inroads in the tastes of American people. While many associate salsa with spicy hot tomato mixtures on which to dip tortillo chips, participants learned that salsa does not necessarilly include tomatoes and hot peppers.

Fruit salsa is colorful, and has just a slight touch of tang. Do not can fruit salsas because it changes the flavor and texture.

Although salsa is most often used as a dip, it is gaining in popularity as an accompaniment to grilled chicken, seafood, pork, beef, hamburgers, and even baked potatoes and pastas.

Salsa cruda refers to uncooked or fresh salsa. But salsa may be canned following kitchen-tested recipes.

Although both fresh and canned salsa are available at supermarkets, many people prefer to make their own. The taste can vary from mild to searing hot depending upon the ingredients used. When making fresh salsa, ingredients can be substituted, left out, or increased, but when canning salsa, follow a kitchen-tested recipe to ensure it contains enough acide to be processed safely in a boiling water canner.

Choose fresh ingredients in peak-season quality. Fruits and vegetables should be ripe but firm. Aim for a balance of flavor, color, and texture.

When used as dip, the salsa should not be too juicy. If you want thicker salsa, merely drain off the juice when ready to serve.

Serve fresh salsa within a few hours of preparation. If it sits too long, the acidic ingredients will "cook" the salsa and ruin its texture. Also raw ingredients such as raw garlic, onion, and chiles will oxidize making their flavors sharp. Allow to stand for 15-20 minutes before serving for flavors to mingle. Serve at room temperature or slightly chilled.

"Salsas are generally low in calories and fat and high in vitamins," Wiker said.

For those who are not familiar with some of the ingredients traditionally used in salsa recipes, here are some tips Wiker shared.

• Chile peppers — more than 7,000 varieties of peppers exist, which range from hot to mild in taste. Chiles contain a chemical known as capsaicin, which gives them heat. To reduce the heat of a chile pepper, remove the seeds and the ribs before adding to a dish.

"Generally the smaller the peppers are, the hotter they are," Wiker said.

The oils that give the chili peppers their fiery taste will burn your skin. Always wear gloves when handling peppers. Avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth.

"Because your eyes tear when chopping chili peppers, a common reaction is to brush your eyes with your hand," Wiker said. "Don't do that."

• Cilantro — Often called Chinese parsley or coriander leaf, this herb has a slightly citrus flavor. It provides a compliment to the chiles and garlic found in many salsa recipes.

• Tomatillos — These green fruits are the base for green salsa. They have a paper outer shell with a fruit that resembles a green tomato. Select fruits that are firm, dry, with clean, close fitting husks that show no sign of blackness or mold.

• Tomatoes — Select firm, ripe, unblemished tomatoes. Paste tomatoes, such as Roma, have a firmer flesh and produce thicker salsa.

• Onions — Red or white onions work well in salsa. To bring out its sweetness, chill for an hour before slicing. The tops of green onions can be used, which add color as well as nutrition to the mixture.

Here are some kitchen-tested recipes Wiker shared at the workshop.

TOMATILLO GREEN SALSA

5 cups chopped tomatillos or green tomatoes
1½ cups seeded, finely chopped jalapeno peppers
4 cups chopped onions
1 cup bottled lemon juice
6 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 tablespoon ground cumin
3 tablespoons oregano leaves
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon black pepper

Combine all ingredients in a large saucepan and stir frequently over high heat until mixture begins to boil, then reduce heat and simmer for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Ladle hot into pint jars, leaving ½ -inch headspace. Adjust lids and process in a boiling water canner: 15 minutes. Yield: 5 pints.

PEACH-GINGER SALSA

1 cup cubed peeled peaches
1 cup cubed seeded tomato
¼ cup sliced green onions
2 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons cider vinegar
1 teaspoon minced peeled fresh ginger or ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash freshly ground pepper

Combine all ingredients, stir well. Chill to combine flavors. Makes 2 cups.

FRUIT SALSA

2 tart green apples
1 cup strawberries, sliced
1 kiwi
1 orange
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 teaspoons apple jelly

Dice all fruit. Mix with brown sugar. Add apple jelly last. Use as dip with cinnamon tortilla chips, made by slicing a soft tortilla in wedges. Sprinkle with water, cinnamon, and sugar. Bake about 5 minutes in 350 degree oven until slightly browned.

TOMATO SALSA

2 cups diced plum tomatoes
½ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup diced yellow or green bell pepper
1 jalapeno pepper, seeded, veined, minced
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon cilantro, chopped
1 tablespoon oil
1 tablespoon fresh lime juice
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 clove garlic, minced

In a large bowl, combine all ingredients. Cover and refrigerate for a few hours to blend flavors. Makes 3 cups.

Nancy Wiker teaches a salsa workshop offered by the Lancaster Extension Penn State Cooperative Extension. In addition to traditional tomato salsas, participants learned how to make fruit salsa.

Detweiler Artifacts Bring Top Prices

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

ALLENSVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — In 1798, Christian Detweiler owned 378 acres in Mifflin County, a large 30x80-foot barn, and a 27x31-foot house with 13 windows. We know this because of federal "Window Tax" documents for that year. The Window Tax measured wealth according to how many glass window panes a home had.

But what do we know of Christian Detweiler's daily life? What were his tools like? How did he light his way to the barn on dark winter mornings?

Few families have preserved artifacts from the 1700s, but the Detweiler collection comes close. Thriftiness, taking good care of what you have, and foresight all played a role in the preservation of Detweiler belongings and collections over four generations. It was an incredible collection. Was . . . because it was all dispersed at auction on July 11.

Samuel Detweiler, a descendent of Christian, is in his 90s. A week before the sale, Samuel talked about some of the items, like the wooden flax breaker his grandfather used in the 1870s.

"Look at the ox shoes," Samuel pointed toward an ox yoke hanging from the basement rafters (it later sold for $2,700). The ox shoes had been mounted onto the yoke long ago. "There're two of them for the split hoof. Here are my father's snow shoes."

Auctioneer Mark Glick of Reedsville shows off a tomahawk, which was only one of thousands of Indian artifacts auctioned near Allensville, Mifflin County.

Samuel reached toward a shelf for the first light his family ever had. An eight-inch high metal stand with a small swinging cup at the top. At the sale, it sold for $450. The little tin cup was filled with lard and would right itself if tilted. During his tour, he pointed out fine and coarse wool cards, one dated 1801, his grandfather's old lantern, a glass bent-necked baby bottle, a "fishing gig" and three of his grandfather's hay forks.

Auctioneer Mark Glick had the daunting task of where to start the bid for items such as sheepskin deeds from the 1790s; the diaries of Samuel's grandfather, Levi Detweiler, written from 1856 on in English; books such as the Reverend David Brainerd's account of preaching to the Native Americans in the 1740s; old guns; an 1859 issue of "The National Stockman Farmer" newspaper; and a set of chairs with original decorative paint that also belonged to Samuel's grandfather. Each chair brought $385 ($2,250 for the whole set). Another object of interest was a Mauser action 8-mm gun, painstakingly inlaid with deer, eagles, fox, and more by Samuel's father. One of Samuel's grandchildren bought it for $2,100.

Just as intriguing was the Detweiler collection of Native American artifacts from the 1700s and before.

"This is rare," Glick said, holding up a long, smooth object destined to sell for $6,500. "It's a 9-inch stone tube pipe." Later at the sale, a Native American artifact expert suggested that the piece could have been a javelin pipe. Native Americans may have strung a rope through it, then hurled it through the air.

Approximately 2,600 Native American artifacts, including arrowheads, stone pipes, axes, a stone bowl, an assortment of spears, and paint cups passed through Glick's hands during the auction. Four hundred forty potential buyers from eight states registered for the sale.

During the tour before the sale, Glick reached for one Native American paint cup in particular. Samuel's son Joe said someone up the valley found this particular paint cup, still stained with red. Then, several years later, that same person found the lid. It sold for $5,500. Glick said Samuel sold more than 48 frames filled with arrowheads, averaging $260 a frame. The grandchildren bought about 25 of the frames while an Erie, Pa., buyers' bill totaled $11,000.

The list of rare objects in this estate was commendable. In a sizable family, though, an auction helps solve the problem of where to store it or how to divide it. But one thing is sure. Whomever placed the final bid on any object, whether family member or antique dealer, they truly know and can appreciate its historical worth.

Kelly's Love For Corriedales Translates Into Berks Sheep Crown

Crowned at the Kutztown Fair is Berks County Lamb and Wool Queen Kelly Glaser, who will promote lamb products in Berks County.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Kelly Glaser, 16, doesn't spell her middle name C-O-R-R-I-E-D-A-L-E.

But for as long as she can remember, that type of sheep has been the breed of choice at the many events nationwide she has participated in.

For her nearly decade-long involvement with the industry, she was crowned Berks County Lamb and Wool Queen recently at the Kutztown Fair.

Kelly, daughter of Karen and Dave Kase, is a senior at Exeter High School in Reading. Her grandmother, Ruth Hartman, was instrumental in getting Kelly interested in and involved with exhibiting Corriedale sheep.

In the years since, Kelly has served with the 25-member Berks County 4-H Youth and Lamb club, where she's president. Kelly has been involved with 4-H for eight years.

Kelly can readily name the various exhibitions she's showed in, including Kutztown, Allentown, Oley, Denver, Kimberton, and Schuylkill County fairs. She's shown at the Keystone International Livestock Exhibition (KILE), Farm Show, North American International Livestock Exhibition, All-American Junior Show, and national Corriedale shows. She's also been to the Midwest Stud Ram Sale, Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival, the Flemington, N.J. and Gaithersburg, Md. fairs.

Why does she like the Corriedale breed so much?

"My grandmother had them," Kelly said. "I think they're a nice breed.

"They're not wild — they're gentle. I think they're pretty and I really like them."

While she says she enjoys the wool breeds, it was her grandmother, Ruth, that introduced Kelly to the Corriedale breed when Kelly was 6 or 7 years old.

As queen, Kelly said she intends to promote all breeds and the sheep industry in the county, and may run next year for state queen.

Kelly plans to attend college, but hasn't selected a major.

Car Wash Raises Funds For Polish Exchange

To raise money for the 4-H Polish Exchange, 4-H'ers from Poland and from Lancaster County hold a car wash.

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County 4-H'ers gave Polish students an idea of what is like to live in the U.S. They opened their homes through a 4-H exchange program. In addition to sightseeing and participating in daily activities, the Polish students also helped to raise funds for the exchange by holding a car wash with the host families.

Host families for the Polish exchange included Mandi Dagen, daughter of Ed and Tina Dagen on Manheim; Amy Hoffines, daughter of Robert and Linda Hoffines of Marietta; Gerald Boyd, son of Kerry and Deb Boyd of Ephrata; April Leaman, daughter of David and Jackie Leaman of Willow Street; and Lacy Moyer, daughter of Tom and Barbara Moyer of Drumore. Ralph and Vonnie McLaughlin, who visited Poland through a 4-H Exchange last year, also served as hosts.

Cake Decorators Compete At Carroll County

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Fairgoers seeking refuge from the heat on the opening day of the Carroll County fair who found themselves in the air-conditioned Burns Hall at the Ag center were in for a sweet treat. The fragrance of buttercream wafted through the hall. Tiers of chocolate, marble, and buttery yellow cake were busily stacked into confectionery sculptures of all sizes and shapes by bustling cake artists. They had stumbled into the midst of a wedding cake decorating contest.

The contest, the first ever of its kind at the fair, was an offshoot of a public wedding and vow renewal held at the 100th anniversary of the fair. Laura Stambaugh and David Zepp were married at the fair in the horse show ring, with a crowd of hundreds sharing their special ceremony with them. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fogle of Johnsville, retired dairy farmers, renewed their vows at the horse show ring. The Fogles were married at the fair in August of 1939.

The tradition of being married at the fair is rooted in history; weddings were held each year at the fair from 1933 through 1942, and then again following the war. The fair committee would advertise in the local paper for couples who wanted to tie the knot at the fair. Names of the parties were kept a secret until fair night.

This year's centennial anniversary fair sparked a flurry of special activities, including the wedding and vow renewal. The decorated wedding cake contest was to supply cake for the great crowd of visitors to the public wedding. The winning cake was cut by the bride and groom following their wedding.

Cakes were entered in professional or amateur classes. Rules Stipulated that there be a minimum of three edible tiers, and that the cakes would fit into a display four by two and one-half feet. Although the bride chose plum as her color and the renewal bride pink, cakes did not have to conform to those colors; any color or theme was acceptable by the judges. Cake decorators were urged to showcase their creativity and skill.

Judging took place in the morning with the public in attendance. Throngs of people witnessed the 25 entries, each made to serve hundreds of people. Decorators pulled out all the stops. There were arched tiers brimming with fresh flowers, domed cakes covered with delicate buttercream cornelli lace, and breathtaking swags of rolled fondant. There was even a fountain flowing with tinted water supporting one cake. There were flowers of all kinds : two-tone buttercream roses, garlands of petite sweet-peas, sky-blue forget-me-nots and every other blossom imaginable.

In the end, the judgdes settled on the understated, elegant entry of Jennifer Bertucco from Hampstead as the champion in the professional category. Jennifer's cake, four graduated tiers of marble cake, was assembled using stacked construction, with each tier resting directly on the layer beneath it. The cakes, iced first in white buttercream, were then covered with a layer of snow-white rolled fondant. Jennifer tinted white chocolate into pastel hues of rose, peach, and tan and modeled roses with it. These she arranged in a trial up one side of each tier, culminating in a cluster at the top accented with a white pastillage bow. White lace filigree heart decorations were evenly applied all over the cake surface.

Cake artist Jennifer Bertucco shows her supreme champion wedding cake. With Jennifer are her "helpers," children Kelsey and Bobby.

"I based it on a picture I saw in a magazine," said Jennifer, a mother of two who works part time decorating cakes for a bakery. She also has a home-based business making wedding cakes. "I had seen a small picture, and I liked it, so I adjusted it a little," she explained of the design of her cake, "It was fun to do, you always enjoy your own work."

First place in the amateur class went to Karen Butler of Frederick. She made a three-tiered French vanilla cake covered in vanilla buttercream and then wrapped in white rolled buttercream icing. The two bottom tiers were stacked and accented with a bead and pearl border, and the top three-layer tier was raised on crystal-look pillars above a tulle and seed pearl puff. A garland of crimson-red bull-blown roses and roseburd modeled of rolled buttercream climbed the side of the layers to the final tier topped with a cluster of satin wedding bells and a scattering of rosebuds.

The overall winner in the amateur class was made by Karen Butler.

The top winners in the professional and amateur divisions competed for the overall first-place wedding cake winner, with Jennifer Bertucco's cake winning overall grand champion. This cake was cut by the bride and groom at the wedding reception at the fair.

Top entries in both classes were as follows: Overall grand champion: Jennifer Bertucco; professional: 1. Jennifer Bertucco; 2. Lucinda Bankert and Missy Utz, Shurfine Nell's Market; 3. Susan Sanders, Hillcrest Restaurant and Bakery. Amateur: 1. Karen Butler; 2. Shelley Smith; 3. Christine Uhrlass.

CATTLE: 175 Performance Females sell, 95 Producing Cows, 42 Open Heifers, 30 Bred Heifers In order to measure our performance program against the rest of the breed, we tested over 160 bulls at central test stations in the 1980s Our bulls have topped these test stations as individuals and sire groups as well as in total dollars The 1990s dictated a "time for change" and we decided to performance test our bulls at home, therefore, by keeping our bulls in their calf crop contemporary group of origin we were able to make their yearling performance data much more meaningful The bulls were sold in conjunction with Tarki River Angus at Carinda, IW, Weaver Angus, Peoria, IL, and Middlefield Farms, Fort Collins, CO For the last 8 yrs., the nutritional management of the herd has been one of intensive rotational grazing for 7 mos of the year and haylage and hay for the balance of the year Total biosecurity of the closed herd

A real world testimony to the acceptance and strong demand of Meadow Mist genetics in the heart of the beef industry. The 1997 bull calves produced at Meadow Mist are again slated for the Profit Maker Bull Test

New Farmer Mac Unveiled For Ag Lenders

WASHINGTON, D.C. — More than 450 agricultural lenders across the United States recently participated in regional workshops to learn more about the "new" Farmer Mac.

The recent changes to Farmer Mac's operating structure, its competitive interest rates and loan options have attracted the interest of agricultural lenders nationwide.

The Federal Agricultural Mortgage Corporation, commonly known as Farmer Mac, provides farmers, ranchers, and rural residents a stable and reliable source of credit to meet financing needs.

Tom Stenson, Farmer Mac's director of agricultural finance, said the workshops provided an open forum for lenders to find out how to use Farmer Mac to the best advantage of their customers in light of the changes Congress has made to Farmer Mac's structure.

"Lenders are eager to know more about financing options available through Farmer Mac," Stenson said. "They want to know all the options available to help their customer make the best decision when financing agricultural real estate or specialized facilities for livestock."

Since its creation in 1988, Farmer Mac's operating structure has been amended several times. The last change happened in 1996, when President Clinton signed legislation that removed the last barriers to Farmer Mac functioning like the successful secondary markets for residential mortgages.

Prior to this legislation, Farmer Mac was forced to work through "poolers," or middlemen who coordinated the loan process. This change now allows Farmer Mac to work directly with the local lender, bringing more competitive rates to farmers. Farmer Mac is the first and only agricultural mortgage provider to publish its interest rates nationally, allowing farmers and ranchers to judge the true competitiveness of its mortgage products.

"Farmer Mac helps lenders provide farmers, ranchers, and rural homeowners with intermediate- and long-term fixed rate loan products at competitive rates and terms," Stenson said. "The new structure also is more user friendlky for the lender. Lenders work directly with Farmer Mac and submit their institution's own loan documentation, eliminating the hassle of completing more forms."

Bruce Law, assistant vice president at Cashmere Valley Bank in Cashmere, Wash., offers Farmer Mac products as part of a complete customer service package. Law attended one of the nine recent lender seminars held across the country to learn more about the new Farmer Mac.

"We offer Farmer Mac loans to borrowers needing to finance agriculture real estate," Law said. "It benefits us by eliminating our loan risk, while at the same time offering the farmer competitive rates."

Farmer Mac loans are used to purchase a farm, refinance and/or expand an operation. A variety of loan options allows borrowers to match loan terms to their needs. Leaders and borrowers benefit from the simple loan process and speedy loan results provided by the changes.

Law has worked with Farmer Mac over the past year to finance real estate purchases for farmers in his area. he continues to work directly with his customers to service the loans.

"Farmer Mac offers a great deal of flexibility and options for us and our customers," he said. "Our customers also appreciate being able to continue working with their own hometown lender."

For more information, visit Farmer Mac online at www.farmermac.com or call (800) 879-FARM.

DuPont To Acquire Protein Technologies International From Ralston Purina

WILMINGTON, Del. — Dupont and Ralston Purina Company announced they have signed a letter of intent for DuPont to purchase Protein Technologies International (PTI) and its related affiliates from Ralston for $1.5 billion, comprised of DuPont stock less certain liabilities.

The two companies are in exclusive negotiations and expect to sign a definitive agreement this fall, subject to due diligence and appropritate corporate and governmental approvals.

PTI is a leading global supplier of soy proteins to the food and paper processing industries, with annual sales of $450 million. Headquartered in St. Louis, PTI has sales in 75 countries with 1,200 employees and numerous technology centers worldwide.

"This represents an important step in our strategy to create shareholder value by growing in the global food, feed and industrial markets with higher value products derived through biotechnology," said John A. Krol, president and CEO of DuPont. "The combination of DuPont, PTI, and the recently announced joint venture with Pioneer bring together the technology and know-how to deliver higher value food and materials to a growing and more demanding world population."

In early August DuPont and Pioneer Hi-Bred International announced the formation of a research alliance and a separate joint venture, Optimum Quality Grains, to speed the development and delivery of new crops that benefit farmers, livestock producers, and consumers worldwide. In support of this alliance, Dupont agreed to purchase 20 percent equity in Pioneer.

According to William F. Kirk, vice president and general manager of DuPont Agricultural Products, "The acquisition of PTI is part of our strategy in the feed and food ingredient industries. DuPont and Optimum Quality Grains will develop and bring the higher value soybeans to market, thereby benefiting growers. DuPont and PTI will convert that better soybean into a broad range of higher value protein applications benefiting food companies and consumers. And, that's only the beginning. We see tremendous potential through the entire agricultural system, from farmers and livestock producers, to applications in the bio-industrial, pharmaceutical and the emerging functions food, or what many are calling nutraceutical industries," said Kirk.

PTI products are used in processed meats, infant formula, soy milk, diet and sports drinks, and many other foods. DuPont has developed its biotechnology capabilities during the past decade and is one of the world leaders in putting value added traits into key crops such as corn and soybeans.

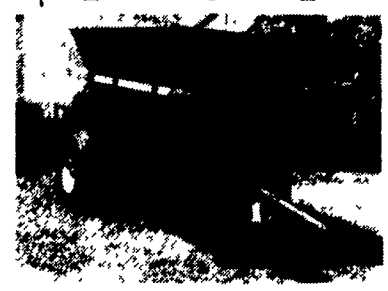
Millcreek Introduces High-Capacity Spreader

BIRD-IN-HAND (Lancaster Co.) — Millcreek Manufacturing introduces the Model 4800, a high-capacity topdresser/spreader for applying sand/peat and compost topdressing, as well as other organic materials on sports fields and large turf areas.

The new machine has a four-cubic-yard capacity and a 10,000-pound payload. The spreading pattern can be easily adjusted from 3 feet to 10 feet wide.

Thickness of the topdressing layer can also be adjusted. Operating at peak capacity, the 4800 can apply four cubic yards of material in less than 10 minutes.

The Millcreek 4800 features a PowerBrush™ spreading mechanism, which propels material outward. The 22-inch diameter PowerBrush breaks up any clumps in material, such as compost and composted sludge, for more even material distribution.



New high-capacity four-cubic-yard capacity topdresser spreader from Millcreek puts increased spreading productivity within the reach of limited school, municipal, and golf course budgets for improving sports turf.

"The 4800 is an answer to requests we've had for a larger version of our original topdresser/spreader, which has about half the capacity," said Joe Glick, Millcreek president. "The larger size helps solve two primary problems. First, it makes spreading high bulk compost more efficient because the large capacity cuts reloading time in half. Second, for topdressing with sand/peat mixes, the machine costs under $8,000, about half the cost of other high-capacity topdressers, putting a basic turf maintenance tool within the reach of more school, municipal, and golf course budgets."

Tractor Built To Handle Wide Variety Of Applications

ATLANTA, Ga. — "There's a demand today among maintenance contractors, institutions, rental yards, homeowners with large acreages, and farmers for a compact, maneuverable tractor with the power, performance and versatility to handle a wide range of jobs," said Richard Petree, Massey Ferguson® product marketing manager. "The new 32 horsepower MF 1235 four-wheel-drive compact tractor from Massey Ferguson meets these requirements."

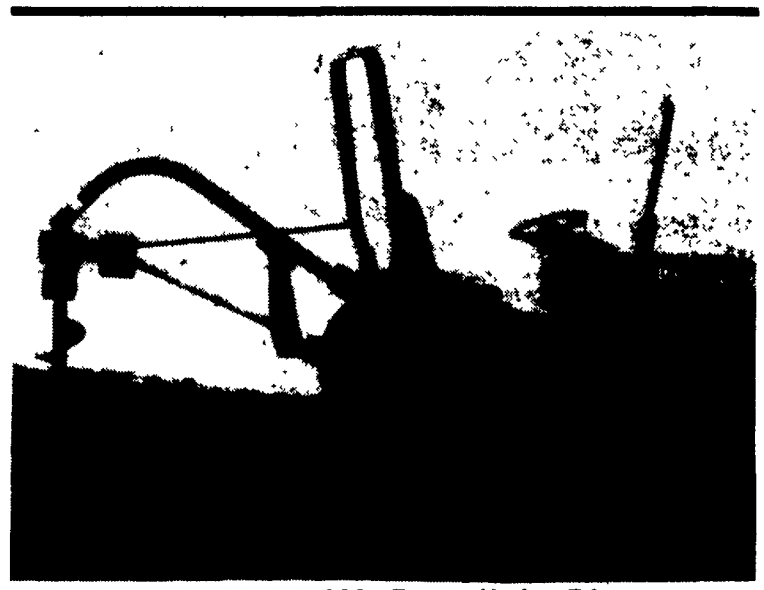
The MF 1235 compact tractor retains all the proven operational and easy-maintenance features of the Massey Ferguson 1200 series compact tractor line. A 3-range hydrostatic transmission delivers infinite speed control without gears, clutching, or shifting to finish jobs faster.

The MF 1235 works with quality mid-mount MF mowers up to 72 inches wide to keep estates, parks, and home acreages looking neat and do it fast. For large area mowing, a cruise control lever can be used to maintain a constant forward travel speed without using the foot pedal.

For really tough mowing jobs in heavy weeds or wooded areas, the MF 1235 can be equipped with a MF rear-mounted rotary cutter with "stump-jumper" hubs for fast, effective results.

Landscapers can grade, backfill, and level with an MF 1235 and a wide assortment of MF dozer blades, box scrapers and landscape rakes. For material handling applications, MF Quick-Attach loaders with lift capacities up to 785 pounds are performance-matched to the MF 1235. The hydrostatic transmission offers maximum productivity in landscaping and loader applications with foot pedal control for fast, smooth direction changes between forward and reverse without clutching.

For specialty farmers and serious gardeners, there's a wide range of MF moldboard plows, rotary tillers, disc harrows, field cultivators, and rwo-crop cultivators available for soil preparation and crop control.



Worksaver's Model 300 Post Hole Digger was designed to make smooth, deep holes quickly and efficiently.

HERE'S THE STRAIGHT SCOOP ABOUT RICHARDTON HIGH DUMP WAGONS

Seems like some folks are always trying to catch up And sometimes they'll do just about anything to get ahead. But you know that for over 35 years Richardton high dump wagons have been the best in the business and in the field So get the best —Hitch up a Richardton Wagon today.

What the competition says about Richardton Wagons	The truth about Richardton High Dump Wagons
Cylinders and cables	Our exclusive patented lock cylinders ensure that the box won't tip over. Our cable system allows you to top off a truck load with a partial dump. You're not restricted to a full dump cycle. And, you save time because there are no master/slave cylinders to purge.
Over two minute cycle time	ALL cycle times depend on your tractor's hydraulic system! We designed our wagon to cycle in less than one minute.
12GA. steel on entire hopper	Our 12GA. steel construction is absolutely the most cost effective and strongest on the market. It's that way today and it's been that way for over 35 years.
Internal braces welded to flat steel	We'll say it again — Richardton wagon components are the strongest and best built on the market!
300# rated standard black pipe fittings	Flared hydraulic steel tubing with 5,000 PSI rated fittings are standard on Richardton wagons
¼" wall material	Our ¼" walls withstand decades of hard use. And, just so you know, we use 5/16" where necessary.
3½" x 3½" slide tubes, steel on steel	Others copy our original heavy duty nylon no-grease slide system. There is NO metal on metal at any time!

RICHARDTON Manufacturing Company

- A fair price

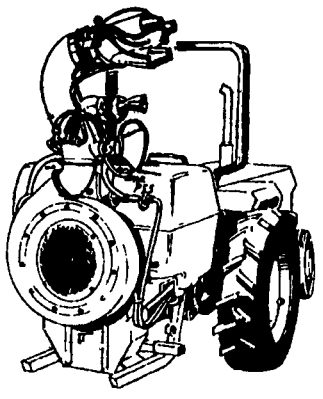
So whether the task involves lifting, digging, spreading or cutting, Case machines get it done. And our quick-change coupling systems let you switch attachments fast. Plus, all Case skid steers from our rugged 15-horsepower gas model to our 56 horsepower diesel, provide the ultimate in power, durability and reliability. In fact, we offer more horsepower than the competition in almost every class. And every model is backed by the Case name, service and dealership you can trust. Atomize Your Crops... Maximize Your Harvest!



We are all endeavoring to profit from the best possible yield from our crops. Fighting diesease and insects with chemicals is an on-going process.

Chemicals have proven to be effective, but the secret is in the application. Atomizers have been used since the 1970's in actual field experience, and insure clean, blemish-free, bountiful crops.

SAVE TIME

WHIRL-A-FEED® SPINNING ACTION

The New Holland Model 40 forage blower saves you time at the silo. This 1000-rpm blower features a 48-inch diameter hopper that center-fills silos 80 feet and higher. The Whirl-a-Feed® rotary table spins crops into the blower housing, and material gets off to a fast start up the blower pipe. Spinning action breaks up heavy clumps, and virtually eliminates plugging. There's less drag on the fan, and more efficient use of the tractor's horsepower.

Find out how to save time with the Model 40 from New Holland.

OPEN COWS WANTED

If you have one or more good dairy cows that you can't get pregnant; call me. I can use about 100 cows. I will feed an all natural mix; breed them and give you first chance to buy the cow back pregnant. Every cow will be bred to a $100.00 A.I. bull; and seven to eight months pregnant when I sell her at the fair market value. You save money on hauling and shrinkage and I will pay you a little extra for the better cows.

The last time I ran an add for Open Cows Wanted; I got a lot of calls from Dairymen wanting to know what I am doing; then they wouldn't sell me the cow after I told them; so I will just tell you now. I use Formula M on your cow; breed to a $100.00 bull and sell her back to you seven or eight months pregnant. The success ratio is near 100%; but if you know the cow to be cystic; please tell me when you call; because the procedure is different for cystic cows. I will take cystic cows; but it will be helpful if I know they are cystic when I buy them.

I am only interested in the better cows with GP, VG or EXC. Mammary.

Chris Stoltzfus

P.S. If you just want to know what I use; call 1-800-327-0727 and save me the time and expense of returning the call.

Buying Income Streams for cash

—CASH ADVANCE PROGRAM—

Production Flexibility Contracts

If waiting for your Production Flexibility Contract payments is limiting your growth or holding you back on your plans, there is now a solution. The CASH *NOW PURCHASE PROGRAM allows you to sell your future contract payments for cash dollars today. The flexible nature of the program allows you to.

- Sell all or part of your contract payments depending on the amount of cash you need now. Since this is not a loan, no payments are due directly from you and the cash you receive now does not show up on your books as a loan.
- Repurchase any remaining future payments due, if your needs change later.
- Raise cash, typically within 30-40 days
- Sell payments on both owned and leased land operations.
- Limit your primary responsibility to remaining in compliance with the Production Flexibility Contract Program.
- Participate in a program that is deliberately designed to allow you full control of your operation. This includes provisions for selling your land, dropping out of the program, buying more qualifying land, and more.

To obtain more information and a written price offer, you need to proceed as follows.

- Contact us. We will send a one page pricing request form. Provide us payment information about your production flexibility contract on the PFC pricing request form. Since we can buy all or part of your contract payments, you need to specify the amount of capital you need now. We will prepare our offer based on your figures.
- Upon acceptance of our offer, we will prepare contract documents for your signature.
- Upon receipt of the signed contract documents from you, we will request any additional information needed and submit the necessary document to The Farm Service Agency for their acknowledgement.
- Once The Farm Service Agency acknowledgement has been received and other conditions of closing have been met, the agreed upon funds are wired to your account.

It's that simple... To inquire further, call Dick Croyle: toll free 1-888-687-8491 office 717-284-3151 - mobile 717-575-5337.

SHANNON VALE FARMS
From Our Farm To You!
GO DOG GO
ALL NATURAL

GO DOG GO is a natural enzyme enhancer and an excellent combination of vitamins and minerals necessary for the proper health of your dog. Mix it daily in your dog's feed. GO DOG GO adjust the pH in your dogs digestive system to maximize digestion. By doing this, the digestive system can create an organic fermentation which utilizes more of the food. As GO DOG GO mixes with digestive secretions, it creates a natural chemical reaction that produces enzymes. Enzyme production increases absorbtion and digestion. Your dog gets more nutrition from its food. Because of this increased absorbtion the intake of food is reduced. This means a feed savings to you! There will also be a reduction in stool. This means less mess for you to clean up! But most of all it means a healthier, happier dog! GO DOG GO will promote shinny coats, brighter eyes, toned muscles, less hyper energy but more "metabolic" energy.
